JAPS ATTACKING IN RELAYS

27 KILLED AS STORM LEVELS OZARK TOWN

200 Injured When Tornado Wrecks Buildings and Power Plant.

FIRES SWEEP WRECKAGE

Medical Supplies Rushed In From Army Camp; Many Still Missing.

(By Associated Press)

BERRYVILLE, Ark.—At least 27 persons were killed and more than 200 injured, many critically, when a tornado leveled more than half of this Ozark mountain town late last night.

Several of the injured were so badly hurt that physicians advised against transporting to hospitals

Fires broke out immediately after the tornado, forcing the survivors to drop their rescue operations for a time to prevent spread of the flames through the splintered wreckage

Approximately 25 persons were trapped and injured in the collapse of the Missouri and Arkansas railroad station Most of them were waiting to board a northbound train.

Without hospital facilities, the stricken town of 1 485 population had only three physicians to care for the scores of injured

The only drug store was demolished and most of the drugs and medical supplies were destroyed, making it impossible for the three doctors to do more than give first aid until supplies arrived from nearby towns.

Doctors and nurses were sent from Harrison and Eureka Springs and several loads of injured were taken to hospitals in other communities.

A passenger bus came through the stricken town 30 minutes after the disaster. Its passengers alighted or stood up to make room for some of the worst injured being taken to the Harrison hospital

The tornado left the town helpless

The power plant was destroyed, forcing rescue workers to work by torch light, flashlight, lanterns, candles, or even matches.

The telephone system remained in operation through use of an emergency battery system

An eight-man medical detachment from Camp Robinson was ordered to Berryville, with medical supplies. An appeal for assistance was sent to the Red Cross at Little Rock.

City Still Holds Up $14.60 Wages Due State Guard

Mayor W. J Locke has ignored recommendations from the state adjutant general's office that the city reimburse a municipal employe the $14.60 which had been deducted from his July pay for having attended maneuvers with Co F, Third regiment, Ohio State Guard.

Locke flatly refused today to discuss the matter with a News-Journal reporter who had just previously been in telephone conference with a high-ranking member of the adjutant general's staff

"Early in August," the military officer said, "Mayor Locke was furnished a copy of the state law governing such cases, with the recommendation that restitution be made. The mayor was instructed to transmit this communication to the city solicitor for such legal action as would

Treason Trial Shows Hitler Sought Data on Famed U. S. Bombsight When He Called Hans Haupt to Fatherland

(By International News Service)

CHICAGO—Adolf Hitler had his eye on the precious Norden bombsight when his high command sent for Herbert Hans Haupt to join a German sabotage party which was preparing to smash America's aluminum production.

The fuehrer's dual purpose could be found today by piecing together isolated but significant bits of testimony presented in the treason trial of six Chicagoans charged with aiding the executed saboteur.

Most recent witness to support this supposition was Frederick Whittock, an employe of a Chicago optical firm manufacturing parts for the amazingly accurate bombsight. Whittock testified that before going to Germany in 1941 young Haupt worked with him for the optical firm, which even then was engaged in this vital war work.

Then, there was the testimony of Ernest Peter Burger, one of the two imprisoned members of the eight-man party which reached American shores last June, laden with precise instructions and vast explosives destined for aluminum plants. Burger stated that among orders given them by the master spy-saboteur, Lieut. Walter Kappe, in Germany, was one for Haupt to return to the optical firm and furnish the group "with information."

Both U. S. Attorney J. Albert Woll and Chief Defense Counsel Benedict J. Short declined to draw out Burger on this point. Nevertheless the objective behind Haupt's special instructions now becomes obvious.

Burger also disclosed that Haupt, whose mother and father, aunt and uncle, and two

RULES FOR CITY BLACKOUTS GET COMMITTEE O.K.

Empower Air Raid Wardens To Halt Traffic, Give Them Power of Arrest

Mansfield's air raid blackout regulations have been put in final form by the civilian defense blackout committee headed by R. D. Iden as chairman and today copies were being prepared under the direction of Judge G. E Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator, for distribution to air wardens, merchants, industries, city police and firemen and others.

Generally, the National Defense council recommendations will be followed, Chairman Iden said, although such revisions as were necessary to avoid complete stoppage of work in war industries have been inserted in the city's program.

Mansfield industries engaged in war work, the committee learned, have so arranged their lighting systems as to be unseen by overhead observers and windows, where necessary, have been treated to prevent interior illumination from showing outside.

Absolute control over the commercial section lighting is provided for in the regulations, making switches available to wardens where necessary in order that store display lights can be turned off in case of an air raid alarm.

Methods of halting all street and highway traffic in the area, including trains, are outlined. Air wardens are empowered to arrest householders, autoists, merchants or others failing to comply with the regulations under enemy attack conditions.

REPEATS PLEA

Willkie Asks Aid To Allies, Says Reds Won't Be Beaten.

NEW YORK—(U P)—Wendell L Willkie repeated last night his plea for more American war aid to China and Russia.

Willkie, who reported to the American people Monday on his recent tour of the Middle East, Russia and China, spoke again by radio and praised Premier Stalin and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

He said Russian production was not enough to beat Germany, but he was "just as sure the Germans never will take Russia as I am that the Japanese will never take the United States, even if they should penetrate to a point where Denver becomes our Stalingrad."

The Mansfield Senior high school band led a delegation of 80 draftees from Board 1 from the Chamber of Commerce to the Erie station where they left at 12.37 p. m. today for army training stations.

Hundreds were on hand to give the boys a fitting "send-off." This group, the second to leave from Board 1, will be followed by groups from Board 2, tomorrow, and by Board 3 draftees on Monday and Tuesday. Only 11 men were in the Board 1 contingent that left yesterday.

Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Victory civic committee, has planned exercises to honor each of the departing delegations.

POLICE, FIREMEN ASK PAY BOOST OF $25 MONTHLY

One Set of Petitions Goes To Council, Another Now Being Circulated.

Signed by every member of the police department, a petition asking a $25 monthly wage increase for each member has been filed with city council and members of the city's fire department obtained petitions today from City Clerk Robert Black for submitting a similar pay boost request.

The police department petition was submitted to the clerk late yesterday by Russell Porch, First ward member of council and chairman of the council finance committee.

Present pay scale in the police division is $120 a month for first-year men, $135 during the second year and $160 for patrolmen first class, beginning with their third year. Under salary ordinance amendments passed last April by council the police chief's pay is fixed at $210, captains $185, lieutenants $170, two detectives at $185 and two patrolmen temporarily assigned to plainclothes duty $185. The identification officer pay is $185, assistant $165.

There are 34 members of the police department

Pay for fire department employes coincides with the police scale excepting that no lieutenants are included in the firemen's table or organization.

Members of both departments cite that increases have been granted in many other Ohio cities comparable to Mansfield in population. At Mt. Vernon, a much smaller city, council recently established a basic pay of $135.

City council meeting next week in November session, is expected to act on the salary raise applications.

Although unexplained, observers feel that inasmuch as the police department petition was presented by Chairman Porch of the finance committee, that element of council already has approved the program and will act likewise with the firemen's petition

LEPKE TO DIE

Court Decrees Death For Murder He Ordered.

ALBANY, N Y —(AP)— New York's highest court decreed today Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, one-time New York City industrial racketeer, must die in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison for a 1936 slaying he is accused of ordering

The 45-year-old Lepke, now serving a 44-year-to-life federal sentence for various crimes, was convicted last December with two henchmen, Emanuel (Mendy) Weiss and Louis Capone, of the murder of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn candy store owner.

The state charged Lepke ordered Rosen's death when he feared the storekeeper would turn informant for Thomas E. Dewey, then Manhattan prosecutor investigating the trucking racket The court of appeals also, by a 4 to 3 vote, affirmed the first degree murder convictions of Weiss and Capone.

Strive to Wear Down U.S. Force On Guadalcanal

Harass Americans Pinned In Henderson Field Area by Day and Night; Navy Silent on Further Sea Action; Planes Batter Jap Bases.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The navy announced today the American troops on Guadalcanal had destroyed 12 Japanese light tanks in the last week and that in the last two days torpedo boats had scored a torpedo hit on a Japanese destroyer which was engaged in reinforcing enemy troops on the island.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Attacking in relays, Japanese ground forces on Guadalcanal today were attempting to wear down already fatigued U. S. Marines and army troops who, nevertheless, have nipped off two enemy spearheads that succeeded in puncturing U. S. lines around the airfield.

Latest front line reports indicated that the Nipponese on Guadalcanal were using the same tactics employed on Bataan—where they attacked again and again until they overwhelmed exhausted American and Filipino forces.

The latest communique which reported the second enemy break-through on Guadalcanal also disclosed that the American forces still were a match for the Nipponese despite lack of sleep and repeated shelling and bombing attacks during the past few weeks.

"During the late afternoon (Oct. 27) an enemy assault on our positions succeeded in piercing our lines," the communique said. "Army and marine corps troops successfully counter-attacked and our original positions were regained. Two additional enemy thrusts were repulsed."

It was obvious, however, that the American troops could not fight off such attacks indefinitely unless supplies and reinforcements arrived. Recent reports indicated that Nipponese warships dominated the waters around Guadalcanal.

There were no further reports of action at sea since the weekend naval-air battle northeast of Guadalcanal. The final outcome of this engagement may determine whether the outnumbered U. S. Pacific fleet units could supply the Guadalcanal garrison.

On Guadalcanal the Nipponese forces held one advantage—they could scatter through the mountains and jungles to rest after strong attacks, leaving smaller units to harass the American lines.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Army and Marine corps forces were pinned to the Henderson field area where they were required to remain constantly on the alert against ground assaults on three sides as well as naval and aerial bombardments.

War analysts asserted, however, that the American position on Guadalcanal would not become desperate until their airfield was

GAINS: British Drive Ahead In Egypt; U. S. Pincer Hinted

(By Associated Press)

Britain's desert armies were officially reported to have scored new gains in their seven-day-old offensive in Egypt today, and at the same time it was disclosed that American troops had been established in Liberia on the west coast of Africa.

Raising the possibility of an Allied "squeeze" against Axis forces in North Africa, U. S army troops were said to have been gathering in Liberia since July and to have built two airports.

Liberia, constituted as a republic in 1847 and modelled after the United States, lies on the great bulge of the African continent, between the British colony of Sierra Leone and the French Ivory coast colony. Its capital, Monrovia, is less than 800 miles airline from Vichy France's key naval base at Dakar

The size of the American contingent was not revealed but was said to include crack Negro troops.

Coincidentally, Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of Vichy's armed forces, returned to Vichy from an inspection of Dakar's defenses and a high French government official intimated that France stood ready not only to defend her colonies but to "counter-attack"

"To the egoism of England, France must respond by egoism just as complete," said Paul Marion, French secretary of state for information.

"She must above all defend her empire and even aim at a triumphant counterattack."

Germany has long exerted pressure on the Vichy regime

REVAMP: Capitol Hears Plans For Unifying Fighting Forces

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Against a background of momentous reports from the Solomons, Capitol Hill attention focused today on propositions to revamp the fighting services, Washington wartime agencies and, moreover, congressional procedure—all aimed at greater military striking power.

Overshadowing all other proposals was that to combine the army, navy and marine corps into a single, coordinated fighting force, wearing one type of uniform and directed by one commander.

Other propositions included:

1 Creation of a congressional "high command" committee to coordinate and expedite wartime legislation.

2. Sweeping reorganization of federal agencies through establishment of an over-all office of war mobilization guided by an "economic general staff."

The three-far reaching propositions generally were aimed at erasing what some of their sponsors termed "jealousy" in the fighting forces, "red tape" in government and "duplication of effort" and slow action in congress.

Rep. Maas (R., Minn.), ranking minority member of the house naval committee and himself a marine colonel, recently proposed the amalgamation of the army, navy and marine corps into one fighting force

His proposal gathered support quickly, and in the senate Senator Lee (D., Okla.) declared the United States should have a "unified supreme command" with "one minister of warfare."

Declaring that the greatest weapon of warfare now is airpower, Lee said the supreme command "should be invested in an air general."

$3,706 Received by Schools From Sale of Scrap Materials

Fourteen Mansfield schools received a total of $3,706.86 from the sale of scrap collected in the national salvage campaign, school principals reported today.

Winner of The News-Journal trophy, St. Peter's school, will use its $793 received from 61 tons of material, to help support the school, Msgr. R. C. Goebel said today.

Western avenue school pupils, who were awarded the "S" pennant offered as a prize by Superintendent W. L. Miller, will be given primary library books, and standardized tests for the upper grades, J. M. Clark, principal said. Part of the $240 from scrap receipts have been used for a film slide projector and school supplies. The remaining amount put in a reserve fund for future supplies.

"That $750 will come in very handy to pay expenses in our civilian defense organization and Victory corps," Glenn G. Rohleder, Senior high school principal said. He pointed out that this money would enable the school to carry on the defense activities without sacrifice on the pupil's part.

Yesterday new velvet maroon stage curtains were put up in Bowman school's auditorium. They were purchased with most of the $260 that the pupils made from their scrap collection. "We decided a long time ago that curtains were needed so this money was used for the project with everyone's consent," E. W. Kissell, principal said.

Checks for $175 still remain uncashed at Bushnell school because

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1942.

Don't forget to buy your October war savings bond.

Another thing being left in doubt is whether the $5 "use tax" stamp on the windshield will have any trade-in value.

"The fiery trial through which we are passing will light us down in honor or dishonor to the latest generation. We shall nobly save, or meanly lose the last, best hope of earth," said Abraham Lincoln. We did not lose it then, nor shall we now.

Politicians Do Not Win Wars

SOME IDEA of the confused state of affairs in connection with United States handling of the war may be gained from the disclaimer of political aspirations which General Douglas MacArthur has considered it advisable to make at this time.

It was unfortunate in the first place that some over-enthusiastic friends mentioned MacArthur in connection with the presidency, but this is understandable in view of his brilliant performance in the Philippines before being transferred to the Australian command.

To the average American just now it is as unimportant whether MacArthur is a Republican or Democrat as is the color of his hair or whether he uses a brushless or lather shaving cream.

Mixture of politics with public business produces serious situations in peacetime—but never so frightfully dangerous as when partisan bias influences administrative policies during war.

It approaches the tragic when a general of such proved capability as MacArthur, who KNOWS what should be done in the Pacific war zone—and how to do it—should be put in the awkward position of having to say: "I started as a soldier and I shall finish as one. The only hope and ambition I have in the world is for victory for our cause in the war."

As a Democratic voter in New York Mr. Roosevelt is quite within his rights, insofar as he deems it advisable, to attempt to influence the partisan politics of that state; as a New Deal Democratic president of the United States he may be excused for political favoritism and recurrent efforts to punish dissenters from his views and policies — but AS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE NATION'S ARMED FORCES IN TIME OF WAR, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, AND THOSE TO WHOM HE DELEGATES MILITARY AUTHORITY, SHOULD DISREGARD PERSONAL OR POLITICAL BIAS AND CHOOSE THE BEST MEN THAT CAN BE FOUND FOR THE BIG JOB OF WINNING THE WAR.

Any hope of quick ending of the present disastrous situation of the Far East, of balancing the record against past mistakes, and of turning the war toward victory, rests largely on a changed administrative attitude in Washington.

Possibly General MacArthur's convincing disavowal of political ambitions may open the way for the unified command in the Pacific which is now being put forward as an urgent need.

If Voters Fail Democracy Fails

SEVERAL "close races" are being predicted in county, district and state contests to be decided at next Tuesday's election.

This means that no more than a few votes may stand between winning and losing. Anyhow, it will be those who are not now planning to vote who hold "the balance of power," and who are duty-bound to cast a ballot expressing their preference—so that choice of officials will be by a majority of citizens, as is intended.

A bulletin issued by the Ohio League of Women Voters puts it bluntly:

"You are on trial November 3—You don't deserve democracy if you don't vote!

"You must hold the home front for the boys on the war front . . . Vote for men of experience and ability for state and local government.

"You can help win the war and the peace if you vote. You can help keep democracy at home if you vote!

"YOU ARE DEMOCRACY—if you fail, democracy fails! Voter, it's up to you!"

Young or old, man or woman, rain or shine—every eligible voter should go to the polls next Tuesday. Show Hitler that he isn't running America YET!

Halloween Party Tonight

THIS is Halloween week-end—with a big party planned for tonight, along lines of the "Help Hunt Halloween" festivities to which Mansfielders have been accustomed for more than a quarter of a century.

The late Fred Hunt, originator and promoter of the idea, showed much interest in the city's young people, and hit upon the plan of sponsoring a community Halloween party as a method of providing outlet for juvenile exuberance of spirit in an enjoyable but harmless way.

McVey post of the American Legion is co-operating with Mrs. Hunt this year in planning and carrying through the party program, with sale of war savings stamps and bonds as a timely feature.

There is to be the parade of masked marchers, of course, and the usual award of prizes—so this will be a good evening to come downtown for a little break in the serious war routine to which most folks are becoming accustomed.

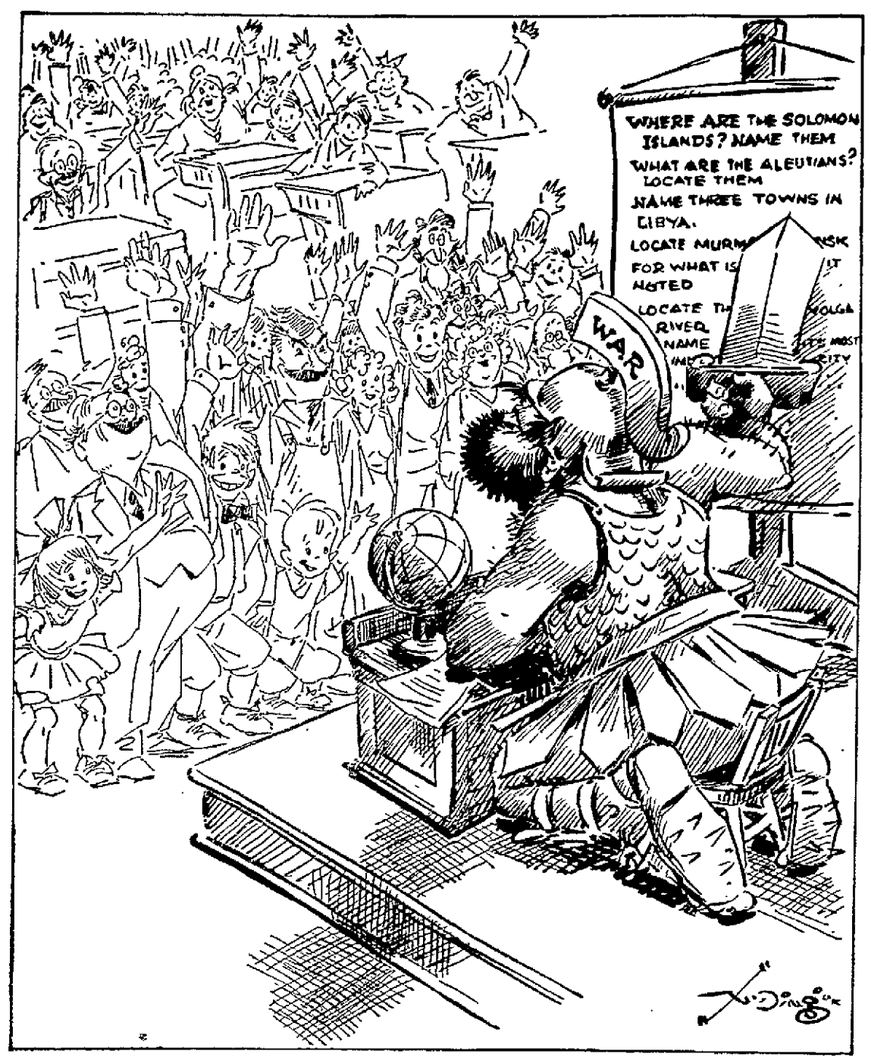
Stalingrad Reminds of Verdun

THE FIGHT for Stalingrad has often been compared to the last war's struggle for Verdun. Both were stoutly defended. The retention or capture of both became a symbol, beyond the mere strategic importance of the place, of victory or defeat.

Verdun was saved, and that in itself is a good omen for Stalingrad. What saved Verdun, however, was the great British attack on the Somme. Launched on July 1, 1916, it made such gains as to force the Germans to draw off from Verdun vitally needed men and guns. Eventually the Somme became a bloody slaughter for British and Germans alike, but it achieved its purpose—that of diverting the German attack on Verdun.

Stalingrad has not yet had a relieving battle like the Somme. The Russian attempts to provide one by their attacks in the Rhzev sector may or may not succeed. But they recognize the principle that unless the Nazi striking force can be split between two areas, the one on which the Germans concentrate is more likely to be captured.

ANYWAY HE'S THE BEST GEOGRAPHY TEACHER



Few Pro-Axis Italians In U. S.

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—An Italian, settling in some other than the country of his nativity, can transform himself into a good citizen of the land of his adoption. That's what Attorney General Francis Biddle recognized in his order exempting those in our own midst from classification as enemy aliens.

Germans have a pretty strong tendency to stay German indefinitely. Not only is this true of those who do their own emigrating, it also is apt to be true of their children and grandchildren, and occasionally on down through several additional generations—folk who, maybe, never saw the Fatherland, but still retain a lot of its inherited characteristics in their systems.

Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York is a sample of quite recent Italian descent. He was born here, to be sure, but his parents weren't. They were Italian enough, originally, to name him "Little Flower" in the language of the peninsula they hailed from. But who'd think of Fiorello as anything but a dyed-in-the-wool American, with a monicker brought from abroad at least as far back as the landing of the Mayflower's first batch of passengers! A "von," though, doesn't so readily get over it.

All the same, the Teutonic tribe furnished us with the ancestry for a very sizable proportion of our best people.

Moreover, a few keep coming—refugees from Nazism and belligerently on our side against the Axis.

Treat 'Em Alike.

Well, then, why shouldn't Attorney General Biddle proclaim these folk also as exempt from consideration as much as Italians amongst us? The point's been raised and seems to be entitled to discussion on its merits.

The answer evidently is that an anti-Nazi German is as deserving of hospitable treatment as any other foreign sojourner with us, but that his case requires individual investigation, rather than such a blanket order as the justice department issued for the Italians' benefit. The presumption's automatically favorable as to an Italian; not necessarily so as to a German.

Federl Secret Service Chief J. Edgar Hoover dug into the situation thoroughly preceding issuance of Attorney General Biddle's order. He didn't find enough pro-Axis Italians in the United States to wad a shotgun. I'd have known that he wouldn't, from chats with Italian-Americans whom I'm personally acquainted with. The unanimity of their verdict against Duce Mussolini was 100 per cent or thereabouts. Since then it's become apparent that it's accurately representative of home-staying Italy.

I'd judge that Herr Hitler and Benito think so, too.

Hitler, from all accounts, seemingly is preparing for a German grab of Italian territory, to counteract Benito's bungling—or perhaps disloyalty to him; Benito's reported to be as mad as a hatter at him, and probably fearful for his personal scalp, from his own country's vengeance.

We've something to learn, by the way, from South America.

Here in the U. S. A. we've fairly thoroughly assimiliated our Old World elements, until we don't know which from which amongst us.

On the southern continent they remain sharply colonized, separately.

Listen World!

'Who Walked Alone'

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"It is strange that men should see sublime inspiration in the ruins of an old church and see none in the ruins of a man."
—Chesterton.

WITH those immortal words, Perry Burgess begins one of the most deeply moving records of human agony and victory that has ever come to print. "Who Walk Alone" is the true story of a young American who unconsciously and innocently contracted leprosy, only to discover his blight nine years later, when life seemed sweetest and most promising. Then managed to struggle back from his headlong horror and hunger for death to live abundantly and usefully for those who shared his dreadful doom.

It is an unusual book which can shock or thrill us now when each morning's headline or broadcast brings new blows against the imagination. We are so preoccupied with war that other terrors fail to move us. But here, in Perry Burgess's book, is the picture of another war more dreadful than any waged by plane or tank—a war which has lasted for thousands of years. Julius Caesar shrank from it, in his triumphant chariot. Genghis Khan, the invincible, fled from its approach. For centuries the cry, "Unclean! Unclean!", struck horror to every human heart. Only the Christ dared touch and heal those ragged wrecks of man.

Do you remember those pictures you saw as a child in Sunday school? The desert roads outside Jerusalem . . . the cliffs pock-marked with caves . . . the fragments of humanity, eyeless and lipless, who mumbled for charity?

It seems so far away, this nightmare of rotting flesh. But, actually, it is not far away. Leprosy's blight spreads over the tropics. No man is free from its menace. Once exposed, he may live for five, eight or ten years without sign of its stigma. Then, some day, there will be a curious sore on his leg that does not heal. A whitish blotch that does not feel. And that man will go down into the worst hell the living soul can know.

FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS BEFORE THIS WAR BEGAN, FOR THOUSANDS OF YEARS AFTER IT SHALL CEASE, THE GRAVER WAR AGAINST LEPROSY MUST GO ON.

These are scientific facts. For the nightmare of mental despair which accompanies those facts, there are no words. Yet Perry Burgess has tried, with great power and pity, to put them into words. You think you exhausted your tears when our boys died in Bataan? But how about the thousands of young, warm lives who, innocently, must die beneath the slow corrosion of this awful curse? Men with yellow skins, red, black, brown and white, whose only offense was that they slept, on some jungle trek, on a native mat.

Perry Burgess's story is the record of such a man, the woman he loved, the noble work he did before his fingers failed. It is a wrenching tale, and yet it is not depressing. It tells how faith may rise above a blasted body . . . how hope may root again in a broken heart . . . how love may survive any vicissitude. In many ways, it ranks with the glorified story of Father Damien, who gave his youth to doomed men and shared their fate.

But it goes far beyond that tragic epic. For it dispels many a fallacy which has made the leper's plight more hideous than it need be. It shows that leprosy is not hopeless, that a stricken man, with the help of God and science, can still be "master of his fate and captain of his soul." Above all, it pays glowing tribute to those heroic souls who minister to this direst of human needs the saintly souls who serve the afflicted.

Here is a nightmare world beyond anything which you or I have dreamed. Yet it is a world with which we must deal inevitably, if we would keep faith with any civilized ideal. Here is part of the future we must face—and conquer, as surely as we must conquer the spiritual gangreen which seeps out of Germany and Japan today.

Does the war news "get you down?" Then read this book. See a new life. Learn what it means to "walk alone"—and in the loneliness find courage and faith and friendliness of One who also was an outcast. Yet who cried, "Go free! Go clean!"

Tough Winter Ahead for Hitler As Russians Upset His Program

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

ADOLF HITLER'S winter troubles are beginning, according to reports from Moscow and developments elsewhere.

Blizzards sweeping down into the Caucasus foothills are beginning to pile snow in the path of the Germans struggling to reach the Grozny oil fields and the ports of the Black sea coast. In a few weeks, snow and freezing weather are due at Leningrad.

Hitler long ago gave up hope of decisive victory in Russia this year and conceded that his forces would have to dig in for another bitter winter. He had, however, hoped to take Stalingrad, which still has some strategic importance, and to reach the Caspian sea. It looks now as though the odds are against his reaching the Caspian.

Hitler had counted on being in a much stronger position in Russia than he is now. He had expected a winter stalemate during which he could replenish his forces and keep German production going at full blast to turn out planes and tanks and guns for a renewed effort next year.

There may not be as great a stalemate in Russia as Hitler had expected. The Red army has suffered no greater losses than the German, perhaps not as great. Russia undoubtedly has heavy reserves which can be used for another winter offensive if Hitler weakens his forces by withdrawals for use elsewhere. Allied material aid to Russia also is organized on a larger scale than last year.

But Russia is only one of Hitler's worries. Two other big ones are the air front in western Europe and the battle in Egypt.

Hitler is not strong enough in the air to prevent the destructive, almost constant smashing of factories, shipyards, airplane centers and communications.

According to a Royal Air Force spokesman, Hitler has about 50 per cent of his air strength tied up in Russia, predominantly bombers. The fighters in western Europe are for defense against raids. He has been unable to reinforce his Russian strength as he would have wished, nor has he been able to send Marshal Erwin Rommel enough planes to offset clear Allied superiority.

If Rommel and his Italian allies are annihilated in Africa, Hitler faces his gravest threat so far in the war. A decisive Allied victory in North Africa would be a prelude to regaining control of the Mediterranean. That could be followed by an invasion of Europe through Italy.

A second land front in Italy on a large enough scale would force Hitler to use up his reserves now held in southern Germany and perhaps withdraw part of his land and air strength from Russia. He would be up against the two major fronts which he always has dreaded and in danger of losing on one front if he concentrates too much strength to win on the other.

Watching Trends

WASHINGTON — The Capital in Wartime:

The $70,000,000 Pentagon building in Alexandria is just about the biggest thing that ever happened to Washington. When finished, it will have about 25 miles of offices and house 40,000 war department workers. That's big.

John E. Haines, Minneapolis air conditioning engineer, has a better way of telling how big it is. Sent to the capital by his firm to inspect the installation job, he arrived at the building at 9 o'clock in the morning and set out to find the installation crew of 34 steamfitters and three engineers. At 5 o'clock in the afternoon, Mr. Haines was still searching. On each of the four floors and basement, he had walked the more than a mile of corridors.

"Several times," he says, "I almost found them—at least I had found where they had just been, but that's as close as I got."

TO THE 300-odd soldiers in the cast of "This Is The Army," getting stuck on a fatigue detail is an experience to be avoided, if possible. Generally, such assignments are meted out as punishment for minor violations of army regulations, but often it is necessary to call for volunteers when the task is a big one.

The other day, the captain sent word along that he wanted 50 men to report to the Treasury building. The sergeant asked for volunteers. The boys shied away. In desperation, the sergeant went to the MP's on duty at the stage door.

"When the matinee performance is over, pick 50 men going out the door here for the treasury detail," he said.

The men got wind of it. Some of them "exited" by the fire escape, others through the corridors of an adjoining building. But 50 got caught, were marched over to the Treasury building and into the department's little movie projection room.

The "detail" consisted of being Secretary Morgenthau's guests for a special showing of "The Whole Town's Talking."

UNHERALDED recently was the record of some kind set by an Army Air Force officer. He had an early breakfast in Foynes, Scotland, and a late dinner in Washington. The difference in time, a good tail wind and a fast bomber were reported to have done the trick.

The rumor business goes on, but there may be something to the one floating around now that the next big job the Baruch committee will be asked to undertake is a report on manpower. Vice President Wallace is said to be the chief advocate for a manpower report to the nation. The idea would be for the Baruch committee to lay the cold facts on the line and tell the public just exactly what it must expect in the way of freezing jobs, drafting labor, etc.

Pre-Season Skating

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Seasonal note: There's skating on the pond in Rockefeller Center. It really isn't that cold yet, but science is a wonderful thing. They just say, "I guess we'll have some ice," and so they have some ice.

You'd get a terrific kick out of watching these Rockefeller Center ice skaters. It's one of the best shows in town, and it's free. The young lovelies who think all there is to skating is buying a fancy costume and watching a couple of ice shows to learn the fundamentals get their come-uppance in a hurry.

They make a pretty picture with their sweaters, flaring skirts and bare legs—until they start floundering around, trying to make like Sonja Henie. Some of them, of course, get pretty good in time, but it's the old pappy-guys with their hands in the pockets of their dull business suits who cut the figure-eights.

THE courtesy and politeness of Alfred G. Vanderbilt is becoming one of the newest legends along the main stem. A while back, when someone recommended an efficient and matronly secretary to Vanderbilt, he had her sit around for six weeks while he continued to manage his own affairs. When his attention was called to the fact, the youthful millionaire-sportsman confessed: "I just can't give orders to a person older than myself." Finally, he got her another job.

Recently, A. G. V., who is president of the Belmont racetrack, was faced with the problem of telling an old timer that his services would not be needed for the coming season. Vanderbilt squirmed. An associate suggested phoning the old timer and telling him he was through.

"I can't fire him over the telephone," Vanderbilt protested. "He might get mad and hang up on me."

Tin From Lowly Tubes.

Those who doubted whether any good purpose was served by requiring purchasers of shaving cream and toothpaste to return empty tubes as a condition of buying new supplies will be reassured by a recent official report. In the six months since the order became effective, 1,168,000 pounds of metal for the tubes have been turned over to the Tin Salvage Institute. From these, 513,920 pounds of tin can be recovered and 260,000 pounds already have been furnished war industries.

This material, made scarce through capture by the Japanese of the Malay Peninsula, is essential in various electrical manufactures and in the construction of airplanes. Compliance with the order to save tubes is thus proved a patriotic necessity.—Detroit News.

A Farmer's Diary

Panic

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN the friendly hilltop orchard, we finished gathering up "pippins" beneath the trees, for "parging in," when we make our apple-butter. It was just sundown when we stopped our laden car before the big gate that partitions the orchard from the rear of the farmhouse grounds.

The orchard, at this end, is the chicken range. Two ample hen houses open into it, and a brooder house is there where every summer, the farmer's wife raises several hundred young layers. Deep bluegrass furnishes plentiful pasture, the tall old apple trees furnish shade. When the fowls are old enough, they roost among the branches, and their care becomes quite simple.

Although it was not yet dusk, we saw patches of white among the dark apple leaves. Beneath the trees, several white fowls loitered, looking upward with craned necks and half spread wings. An occasional flutter and a crowded movement of sleepy birds—an asking chirp or two, a contended murmur of answer—told that the dwellers of this little chicken heaven were going to rest for the night . . .

Towser, the big black and white dog, came up, and I spoke to him. I never will know what I said, or what quality of my voice seemed alarming. I am no alarmist. But the result was electric.

With an hysterical squawk, one flighty hen took exception to my remark. Immediately a murmur of apprehension ran through all the trees. Out from the greenery, near and far, came tumbling and fluttering all the white-clad chicken tribe in rumpled night clothes. As the rumor spread from one tree to another, places where no chickens were in sight yielded up whole flocks of flustered, wild-eyed cacklers. The sound of their own wings seemed to add to their fear. Such a bedlam you never heard!

They ran, pellmell, toward their foster mother, the brooder house. But once down out of the shadowy trees, they could see much better. From the safety of their peephood haunts, they stared at one another questioningly, then put their addled red heads together as though appointing committees to investigate that horrid sound.

My wife and I sat in our car and laughed. "What ails them?" I said, puzzled. "What frightened them—do you know?"

"Don't insinuate that I can understand hen talk," she answered tartly. "I guess they took your voice for an air raid siren! That's an idea—with a megaphone, from this hill you could scare the whole country!"

I choked her.

All Suit Hunters Given Hints On What To Choose

To the women looking for suits to match their tastes the following suggestions should prove a great help

Suppose you want a sporty suit, a comfortable, sturdy number for rugged usage in the country or at school or college Corduroy is the news It comes in a wealth of attractive colors and is notable for its roomy cut Gray flannel is a classic, always smart, always sure to look right You can wear it with a blouse or sweater of any color. Tweeds are delightfully attractive for town as well as in the country The 'shirtwaist suit" is young and functional, cut with a shirt-collar jacket and made so that it's satisfactory with or without a blouse (Seems to be appropriate for the cold weather ahead)

If it's a town suit you ought to have there's the man-tailored worsted model, if you have the figure for it. The very newest kind is a wide gray or brown chalk stripe peaked lapels slash pockets and a skirt as slim as can be

"Commando" is the name for the latest suit silhouette of the year. It's a wrist-length box jacket buttoned up to a high shirt collar with a skirt just wide enough to walk in and built for a shoulder-strap bag

If it's a bright suit that you have in mind consider one of mossy green or slate blue or cranberry red These are fashioned in untrimmed simple styles with intriguing little details. Some have dyed-to-match velveteen in pipings and back-collars. Black plus-a-bright-color is one of the high style ideas to be found in exclusive shops. A striking effect is obtained through the contrasting of bright greens, purple or raspberry red with black for "town tweeds."

New Slim Styles Have Distinction

By SUSAN BARDEN
International Illustrated News Writer

There's real news in this season's fashions in women's sizes Distinguished and graceful, the new slim styles appearing now in the shops prove conclusively that designers have met the tremendous challenge of war production board conservation rulings with outstanding ingenuity and talent.

The departure of the once inevitable fullness and flowing drapery which characterized women's fashions in the past has caused no loss of grace or flattery On the contrary, there has emerged a new clean-lined simplicity which is especially kind to mature figures.

Justifiably proud of their achievement, designers of styles in women's sizes report that they have reduced the amount of material used by about 20 per cent under last season, and at the same time have found their fabric-saving styles accepted with unprecedented enthusiasm.

Secret of Restyling.

The main secret of this successful restyling, they say, is accent on fabric rather than on yardage.

The three dresses shown in the above protographs are typical of the smart and slenderizing clothes that women will wear this year.

Shown left above is a style that is both slimming and attractive. The dress features gilt embroidery and tiny nail heads against the bodice of a cocoa brown frock.

It is made of mossy rayon crepe in a chic long-sleeved afternoon model.

Corded Rayon Crepe.

The center frock is made of novelty corded rayon crepe and is also fashioned along slimming lines.

This is one of those practical dresses that can be worn to business and will be dressy enough to carry on for an afternoon or evening date To make it more festive the dress has brilliant studded plastic trim

The gown, at the right, has the flattery of lustrous crush-resistant transparent rayon velvet and is high-lighted by distinctively simple lines. It is an all-occasion frock that is particularly appealing to the smart matron who wishes to dress simply but cleverly.

Nutritious Lunch Boxes Discussed By Mrs. Kiene

"The increasing importance of the lunch box cannot be ignored." With that remark at the Westinghouse Health for Victory club meeting yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Julia Kiene, director of the club, prefaced her talk and demonstration on what it takes to pack the right kind of lunch pail. The meeting was held at 2 p. m. in the Westinghouse auditorium.

With the coming of gasoline rationing, the army of lunch box carriers is bound to multiply, Mrs. Kiene explained, and a poorly-planned lunch box is sabotage to the war effort.

Pointing to a large chart, the home economist reviewed the eight basic food requirements that constitute a "good" lunch, and then explained how to "work" them into the lunch pail with a minimum of time and effort. Plan today for tomorrow's lunch, Mrs. Kiene suggested, demonstrating time-saving hints as she talked. Prepare as many of the lunch box ingredients as possible the night before and store them in the refrigerator

To prove that such organization in advance saves time and steps, the home economist started from scratch and packed three well-balanced lunch boxes in less than 8 minutes each.

Mrs. Kiene stressed the importance of a "surprise" a day in the lunch pail, and the necessity of providing additional fruits and vegetables for the lunch pail of the war worker on the third shift. In discussing the meal-planning problems that arise from different shifts, the home economist displayed three charts which suggested how to time meals when they occur at all hours. She urged that, whatever the schedule, it should permit the war worker to join his family for at least one meal a day.

The meeting was not without its surprises Miss Helen Robertson of Cleveland was Mrs Kiene's guest, and she spoke briefly about the urgency of saving household scrap and grease. Miss Robertson, temporarily in the government service to aid the nation-wide household scrap drive, is woman's page editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer. Members received the 71-page Meal Planning Guide for November.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

My father hung up the telephone and complacently spoke to Dicky.

"Well, the stage is set," he said. "Now for the rising curtain."

Dr. Twitchell was the first to arrive, and my father explained matters to his confidential comrade of many exciting adventures, while the physician was making a swift examination of Noel and Mary, still unconscious.

"They're in no danger whatever," he said. "They've had a powerful dose, and if one of them had heart trouble it might not be so good. But Milner would inform himself of that beforehand. He's too able a citizen to take a chance like that.

The other room holds the coffee service?" he asked. "I suppose, to make good the drama, I ought to impound it, even though you say I shall find nothing in it."

Putting On An Act.

"That is exactly what I want you to do," my father said. Then, as a hurried knock sounded on the sitting room door, he murmured: "Richard, go to Noel. Margaret, if you'll do a bit of hysterical questioning of Dr. Twitchell, as soon as you hear the door open, I shall be infinitely obliged. Doctor if you can make out that this is worse than it really is, I shall be glad. You might stress the heart angle."

Then he went into the sitting room, where Dicky had preceded him and where I could see him bending over Noel. And just before my father opened the outside door I let my voice rise in a piercing wail:

"Oh, Dr. Twitchell, tell me she isn't going to die! She looks so like death I can't bear it, I tell you. I can't bear it."

And from the room behind me I could hear my father's voice in judicial accusation.

"Come in, Mr. Milner, and shut the door. Something terrible has happened here, something which I think you, as manager, ought to explain."

"I don't understand," Milner stammered. He patently was a capable actor. "What has happened? Tell me."

"Don't excite yourself so, Mrs. Graham!" Dr. Twitchell admonished me. "I am sure your niece isn't going to die. She hasn't a weak heart has she?"

"Oh, but she has," I cried convincingly. "Nobody knows it but me, not even her husband. She was going to see a specialist tomorrow."

"Then," Dr. Twitchell said with quick authority, "please move back from the bed. I shall have to test her heart further, and take measures to counteract whatever she has taken."

Caught In a Trap.

"Oh, Doctor," I wailed. "She won't die while I'm gone, will she? You won't let her do that?"

"My dear Mrs. Graham!" The physician said with severity, while his lips twitched and his eyes twinkled, "You are hindering me. No, she will not die."

"Oh, I'll go at once," I sobbed, and hurried into the other room. There Milner stood at bay while my father told him what had happened. As I came in Dicky turned from bending over Noel and slipped his arm around me.

"You must calm yourself, dearest," he said, as if in tender, husbandly chiding. "Dr. Twitchell thinks Noel is in fair condition, and you know he is a capable physician. So Mary is in good hands."

At an imperative knock, my father said, "That will be Mr. Veritzen," and moved toward the door.

"Mr. Veritzen!" the manager gasped, shaken for the first time from his composure. "You sent for him!"

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Oct. 31.

A difficult day with strange and sudden developments that call for more than ordinary discretion, circumspection and probably intuitive insight or shrewd manipulation if dangerous shoals are to be avoided. Bitter antagonisms, estrangements, and opposition, both public and private, with drastic activities or ruthless tactics may menace seriously.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year which will call for almost colossal strength, shrewdness and wisdom to swerve from the rocks and shoals of disaster, both in personal and in business propositions. The element of antagonism, opposition, hostility and drastic ways of manifesting these may be found in public, group and "higher up" circles. These may best be manipulated and placated by cool, contained, and amiable conduct, born of intuitive guidance or clever insight into root cause of the animosity.

A child born on this day may have a spectacular career with many ups and downs, this affecting its private as well as public and business associations.

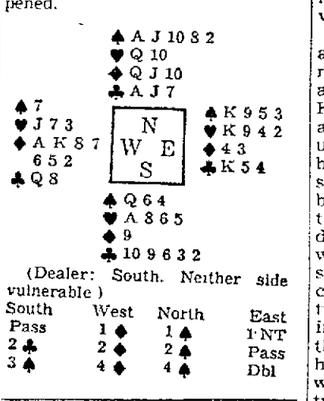
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SWINGS ARE TERRIFIC

When you play rubber bridge, you know what actually does happen on each hand, but you frequently have hardly any idea of the other possibilities of the deal. In a duplicate game, in which a single deal gets played at a lot of different tables, the results vary tremendously, with the swing between best and worst terrific. Some of the scores produced are almost beyond belief until somebody relates exactly what happened.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♦	1 ♠	1 NT
2 ♣	2 ♦	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	4 ♦	4 ♠	Dbl

Only one table produced that crazily overbid contract. Can you blame East for being dazed about it all and passing on his second turn, and then for doubling when it got so high?

One person you can't blame for being a doubter was the North player at another table, who got set at 3-Spades, partly due to his own bad play, when North at this table said after the game that he made his 4-Spades without ever even taking a trick with the heart. A. Then the play was reviewed, proving his story.

The diamond 4 to the K brought a shift to the club Q, the A winning, the spade A being laid down and the club J being given to the K. East then decided to whack at the heart re-entry for clubs, using his 2 for the purpose. This brought the 5, J and Q, and the spade 2 was led to the K, the Q being put under it. East next led the heart 4, which the 10 won—declarer's second trick in the suit without ever using the A. The spade J and 10 were scored, the club 7 led to the 9, and the last two clubs were used for discarding the diamond J and Q. When the heart A was led then, North had nothing left but the spade 8, which trumped it for the final trick. The defenders had scored only one trick each in diamonds, spades and clubs.

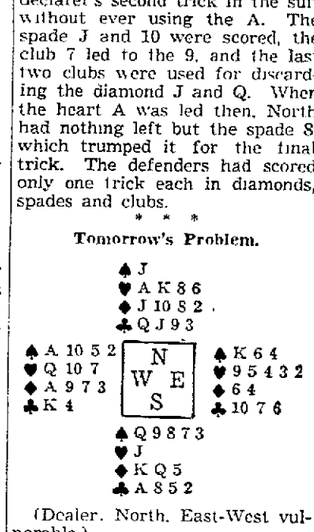
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. North. East-West vulnerable.)

If the opponents had bid all four suits and East leads the spade 4, how should West manage to figure out the sound defense to defeat North's 3-No Trumps on this deal?

WANTS SCRAP FROM RIVER

MARTINS FERRY —(AP)— The city asked the United States army engineers to provide a derrick boat to help remove about 800 feet of old water lines from an intake beneath the Ohio river bed. The army was expected to cooperate to aid in providing material for the nationwide scrap drive.

Mayor Lee Woods said about 800 feet of pipe extended from an old waterworks pumping station into the stream just below Dam 12. It was abandoned fully 30 years ago when a new pumping station was built.

Don't Let Worry Spoil Your Face And Family's Life

MME. QUI VIVE

War brings anxieties, deprivations, sacrifices, changes in our comfortable manner of living. Yet there are many women, untouched by the world's great tragedy, doing nothing to help, having no members of their families in danger, who are whining and complaining over the silliest trifles. They are the ones who have made worry an occupation. Worry has been their business. They have specialized in it. They have become expert. They wear their signs upon their faces. Anxiety is something that we may not be able to cast aside. Worry is of our own making. It is something quite different from anxiety.

When a woman realizes that emotional storms—even little passing flurries—play havoc with good looks she has solved some of her beauty problems. Physical health is not enough; there must be mental strength as well if one is to be in top form, able to face what the day brings. To worry is to wear out the mental machine, unnecessarily. Judgment becomes impaired. Work is not accomplished with efficiency. It is a termite that destroys the house of good appearance.

Thousands of women make themselves sick worrying about diseases that they imagine they have. Doctors can't talk them out of it.

When the worrying bug starts biting the wise woman, she gives herself a good bawling out.

"Here, you nut," she says to herself, "stop that nonesense! How many times before have you fretted about things that never happened? You made yourself and your family wretched and miserable for no reason at all. If you won't be fair to yourself, be fair to them, because one unhappy individual in the house affects all the others. Why kill their good spirits with your foolishness?

"You chase yourself to a funny movie. Or to the library for an amusing book. Your thoughts are running into gloomy channels and that's bad. If you fall into a ditch of nervousness you may not be able to crawl out right away. Get going, now. I'm sick of you, you weak coward."

Unpleasant emotions have a deplorable effect upon the health. Rage causes the mouth to become dry. The throat contracts. Vision is blurred. The pulse thickens. Jealousy has the same physical effects. Emotional upsets are often followed by exhaustion and collapse, trembling and nervous excitement.

Worry works more slowly, but it gets in its cruel licks. Because it interferes with nutrition, the tissues of the face soften. Fine lines appear. The throat loses firmness. The pose of the body changes from the erect carriage of courage to the slouching attitude of despair.

Give Honest Replies to All Queries

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"Do potatoes grow on trees?" the child of four inquired. "Don't bother me," the mother crossly answered.

But why so? She was not busy. She was sitting by him in a trolley car. She was not reading. So far as I could ascertain, she was just sitting there. She had the opportunity to add to her enjoyment and the child's; to her education and to his. But she didn't. She annoyed him by being annoyed at his honest question. She was robbing him of the opportunity to learn and to express himself, and robbing herself of his companionship.

Suppose she had been busy peeling onions, darning stockings, or playing solitaire. She could have let her hands go on while she used her head to make a courteous reply, even under such conditions.

Replying When Busy.

But suppose she had been reading, playing the piano, or answering the telephone. By a word or a gesture, she then could easily have replied that she would answer just as soon as possible.

But we do not always have the answers to the questions which our children ask. Then it is we are most tempted to betray annoyance or to bluntly say, "Don't mother me." Proud and vain, we hesitate to admit our ignorance or worse still, we may give an answer only partly true or wholly incorrect. We may fool the child occasionally, but we can't do so very long. What will happen when he has discovered our dishonesty?

We might as well be frank about our ignorance. To do so will not make him lose faith in us; but not to do so surely will.

We cannot afford, however, just to say, "I do not know," and let the matter drop. We must find the answer if we are to be good parents. Let us go with the child, even long before he can read, to ask someone who knows, or to our encyclopedia, letting him see us searching honestly for information. By doing so, we encourage him to go on inquiring.

Certainly we shall never be so foolish as to say: "Don't ask such a silly question," or to smile at any question from him. Neither shall we say: "You know that," even if he was answered before. We shall calmly answer him or lead him patiently to see that he already knows the answer.

Among the questions which he will ask us very early, and which we shall answer just as we shall answer others, will be, "Where do babies come from?" And we won't need to go to any encyclopedia for the information. Being parents, we ought to know that babies grow in the mother's body. Why should we hesitate or lie about this fact?

A selected list of books and pamphlets to aid parents in answering the child's questions about sex may be had by writing me at 235 East 45th street, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Hit Comedy.

Ruth McKenney's Broadway stage success, "My Sister Eileen," that brought the Ohio author fame and fortune, comes to the Madison theater in film form Saturday with Rosalind Russell and Janet Blair in the leads. The story of two Columbus, Ohio, sisters who sought careers in New York first furnished hilarity in a nationally-read weekly. Later it appeared in book form and then as a comedy of the first order on the broadway stage. The plot revolves around the gay adventures of the Columbus pair and how they combated the wolves of Broadway. Brian Aherne, Allyn Joslyn and George Tobias are in the cast.

R. A. F. Thriller.

An action-packed story concerning a British bomber crew that gunned, dynamited and fought its way across Germany after being shot down by the Nazis is told in "Desperate Journey," Errol Flynn's starring picture opening Saturday at the Ohio. Ronald Reagan, Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Ronald Sinclair appear with Flynn as the flyers while Raymond Massey has the role of a Nazi intelligence officer. The airmen's flight across Germany disguised in Nazi uniforms and their ultimate apprehension by the gestapo furnishes a number of thrilling situations. Nancy Coleman lends a feminine touch to the picture.

College Comedy.

"Sweater Girl," Eddie Bracken's starring picture opening today at the Ritz, has a collegiate atmosphere with a campus musical show thrown in for extra entertainment. Bracken has the role of a stage-struck student who is lending a hand at directing a campus show when a brother student is murdered. The "who-done-it" theme is followed from there with plenty of laughs combined with the mystery. June Preisser, Nils Asther and Phillip Terry are in the cast. John Wayne in "The Lawless Frontier," is the second attraction.

Racket Expose.

Dramatizing the operations of unscrupulous money-lenders, "Tough As They Come," the Park attraction, is a melodrama dealing with rackets and racket-busting. Heading the cast is the group of youngsters known as the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys. Billy Halop has his first romantic lead as a young law student who innocently becomes part of a racket but eventually brings about its undoing. Ann Gillis and Helen Parrish are in the cast. "Texas To Bataan," is the second picture.

William Tyree narrowly escaped death while covering the battle of Midway for the United Press. As he watched the action from the bridge of an American warship, 50-calibre machine gun bullets from a Japanese torpedo plane splattered the armor plate protecting his chest.

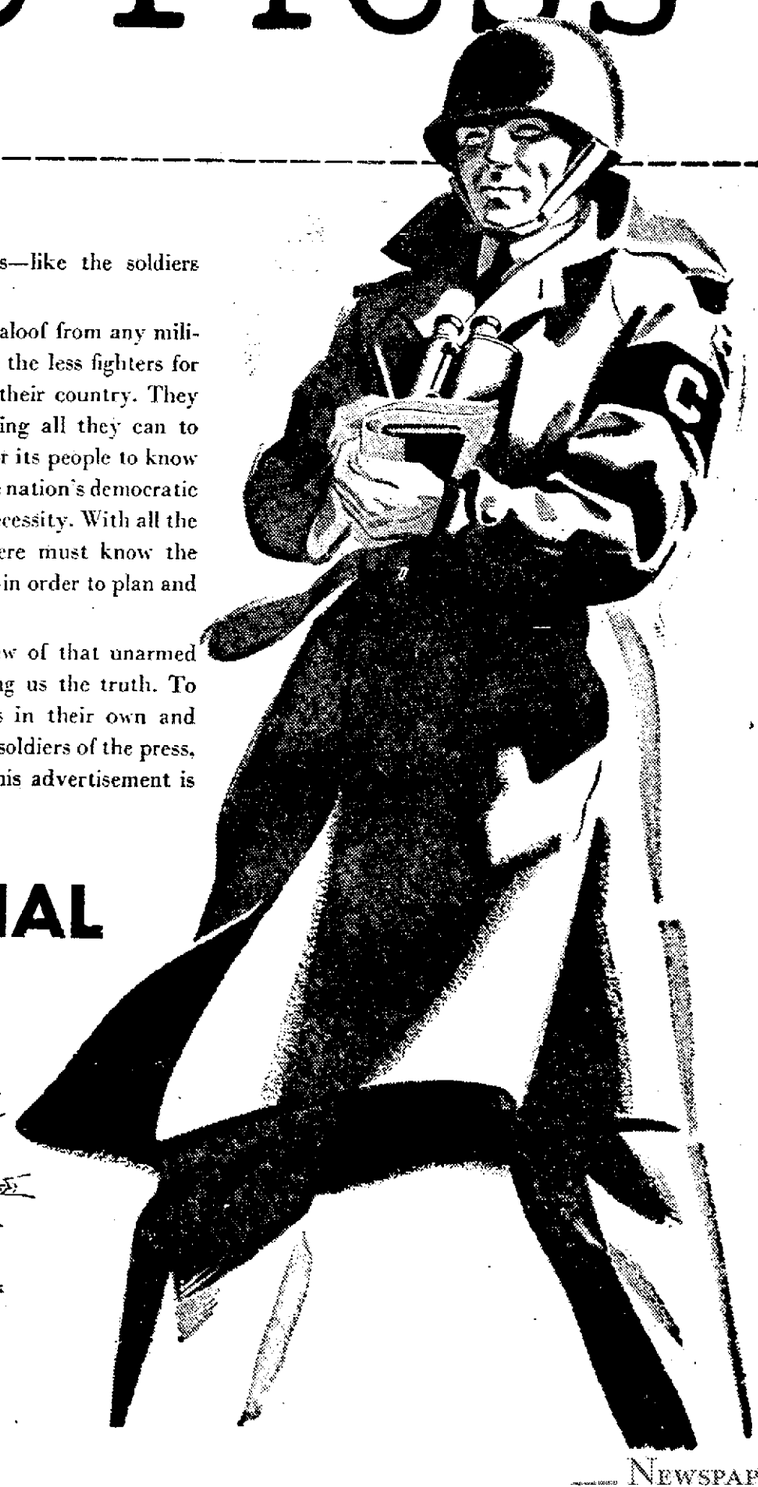
SHOULDER to shoulder with the fighting men on the war fronts of the world go the correspondents of the American press.

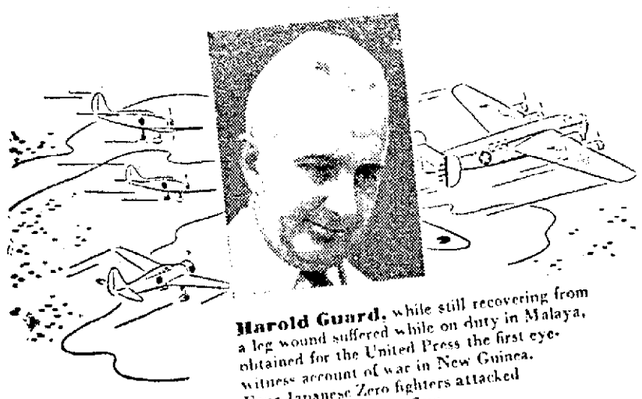
You will find them peering down from the bellies of bombers over New Guinea or Hamburg, scanning the swirling actions in Egypt from the scant cover of foxholes or from within baking, bruising tanks. You will find them on the bridges and sky-controls of cruisers and carriers off Midway and Wake and Malta as the enemy torpedo planes swoop. You will find them plodding through the steaming tangle of Burmese jungles, or sharing a lookout's watch aboard a convoy ship heading blindly through the Arctic dark for Murmansk.

With the troops and crews and squadrons the correspondents face every hazard of war: gun-fire and capture and pestilence, hardship and tension and tedium. They face these things at the risk—and sometimes at the sacrifice—of their lives and their freedom. They face them steadfastly, undramatically, like soldiers—like the soldiers that they are.

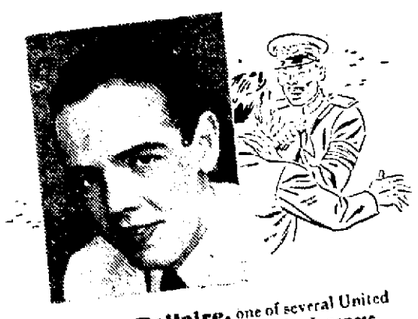
For while they must remain wholly aloof from any military part at the front, they are none the less fighters for the principles and for the needs of their country. They are chancing all they have and doing all they can to report to their country the truth. For its people to know the truth is a birthright implicit in the nation's democratic ideal, a birthright which today is a necessity. With all the world tumult and confusion, we here must know the truth—clearly, completely, quickly—in order to plan and to act effectively for victory.

Pictured here are a representative few of that unarmed army of men whose dispatches bring us the truth. To them and their legion of associates in their own and kindred world-news services, to the soldiers of the press, the American war correspondents, this advertisement is a salute.





Harold Guard, while still recovering from a leg wound suffered while on duty in Malaya, obtained for the United Press the first eye-witness account of war in New Guinea. Four Japanese Zero fighters attacked the plane in which he flew.



Robert Bellaire, one of several United Press correspondents interned by Japanese, was choked by Japanese police and threatened with greater violence for refusing to write a pro-Japanese article.

Richard McMillan rode in a British tank into the inferno of fighting at the Hill of Jesus to get for the United Press first-hand reports of the defense of Egypt.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

Runaway Horses Revive Memories Of Past at Galion

GALION — What might have been ordinary news about 40 years ago, provided an old-fashioned "thriller" to witnesses in Galion Friday afternoon.

Frightened by a group of school children, a team of horses, owned by Alonzo Beltz of west of Galion, ran away on Cherry street, taking with them the wagon they were drawing, their driver, Milton Miller, and his companion, George Harrington.

The team and wagon were proceeding west on the street when the horses became frightened, ran to the intersection of Fellows street where they crashed into the rear of a French Dry Cleaning company truck, pushing it against an electric light pole. Besides caving in the truck, the horses also ruined a good set of harness.

THEATERS

Hit Comedy.

Ruth McKenney's Broadway stage success, "My Sister Eileen," that brought the Ohio author fame and fortune, comes to the Madison theater in film form Saturday with Rosalind Russell and Janet Blair in the leads. The story of two Columbus, Ohio, sisters who sought careers in New York first furnished hilarity in a nationally-read weekly. Later it appeared in book form and then as a comedy of the first order on the broadway stage. The plot revolves around the gay adventures of the Columbus pair and how they combated the wolves of Broadway. Brian Aherne, Allyn Joslyn and George Tobias are in the cast.

R. A. F. Thriller.

An action-packed story concerning a British bomber crew that gunned, dynamited and fought its way across Germany after being shot down by the Nazis is told in "Desperate Journey," Errol Flynn's starring picture opening Saturday at the Ohio. Ronald Reagan, Alan Hale, Arthur Kennedy and Ronald Sinclair appear with Flynn as the flyers while Raymond Massey has the role of a Nazi intelligence officer. The airmen's flight across Germany disguised in Nazi uniforms and their ultimate apprehension by the gestapo furnishes a number of thrilling situations. Nancy Coleman lends a feminine touch to the picture.

College Comedy.

"Sweater Girl," Eddie Bracken's starring picture opening today at the Ritz, has a collegiate atmosphere with a campus musical show thrown in for extra entertainment. Bracken has the role of a stage-struck student who is lending a hand at directing a campus show when a brother student is murdered. The "who-done-it" theme is followed from there with plenty of laughs combined with the mystery. June Preisser, Nils Asther and Phillip Terry are in the cast. John Wayne in "The Lawless Frontier," is the second attraction.

Racket Expose.

Dramatizing the operations of unscrupulous money-lenders, "Tough As They Come," the Park attraction, is a melodrama dealing with rackets and racket-busting. Heading the cast is the group of youngsters known as the Dead End Kids and Little Tough Guys. Billy Halop has his first romantic lead as a young law student who innocently becomes part of a racket but eventually brings about its undoing. Ann Gillis and Helen Parrish are in the cast. "Texas To Bataan," is the second picture.

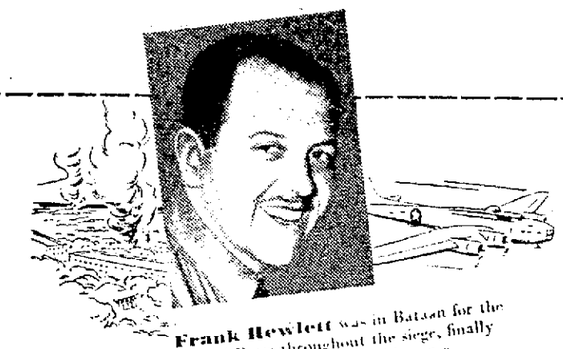
Soldiers of the Press



Frank Hewlett was in Bataan for the United Press throughout the siege, finally was flown out from Corregidor on a bomber, the last newspaperman to leave.

William Tyree narrowly escaped death while covering the battle of Midway for the United Press. As he watched the action from the bridge of an American warship, 50-calibre machine gun bullets from a Japanese torpedo plane splattered the armor plate protecting his chest.

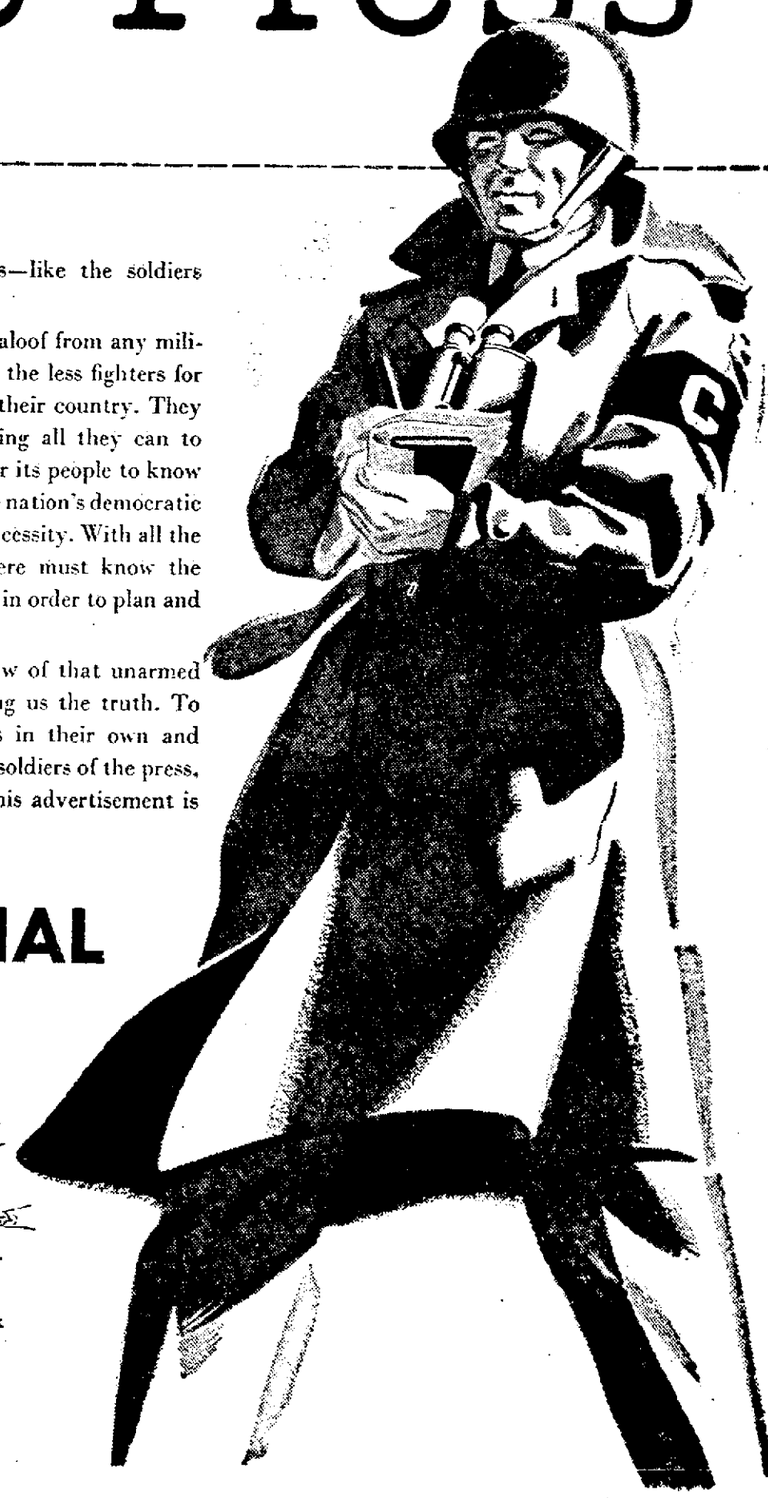
SHOULDER to shoulder with the fighting men on the war fronts of the world go the correspondents of the American press.

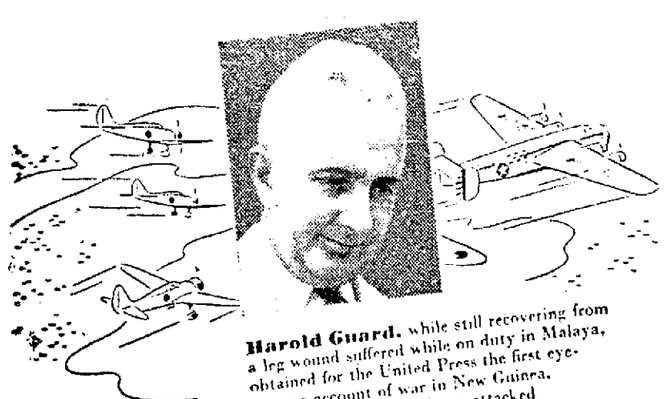
You will find them peering down from the bellies of bombers over New Guinea or Hamburg, scanning the swirling actions in Egypt from the scant cover of foxholes or from within baking, bruising tanks. You will find them on the bridges and sky-controls of cruisers and carriers off Midway and Wake and Malta as the enemy torpedo planes swoop. You will find them plodding through the steaming tangle of Burmese jungles, or sharing a look-out's watch aboard a convoy ship heading blindly through the Arctic dark for Murmansk.

With the troops and crews and squadrons the correspondents face every hazard of war: gun-fire and capture and pestilence, hardship and tension and tedium. They face these things at the risk—and sometimes at the sacrifice—of their lives and their freedom. They face them steadfastly, undramatically, like soldiers—like the soldiers that they are.

For while they must remain wholly aloof from any military part at the front, they are none the less fighters for the principles and for the needs of their country. With all the world tumult and confusion, we here must know the truth—clearly, completely, quickly—in order to plan and to act effectively for victory.

Pictured here are a representative few of that unarmed army of men whose dispatches bring us the truth. To them and their legion of associates in their own and kindred world-news services, to the soldiers of the press, the American war correspondents, this advertisement is a salute.





Harold Guard, while still recovering from a leg wound suffered while on duty in Malaya, obtained for the United Press the first eye-witness account of war in New Guinea. Four Japanese Zero fighters attacked the plane in which he flew.

Robert Bellaire, one of several United Press correspondents interned by Japanese, was choked by Japanese police and threatened with greater violence for refusing to write a pro-Japanese article.

Richard McMillan rode in a British tank into the inferno of fighting at the Hill of Jesus to get for the United Press first-hand reports of the defense of Egypt.

Runaway Horses Revive Memories Of Past at Galion

Frightened by a group of school children, a team of horses, owned by Alonzo Beltz of west of Galion, ran away on Cherry street, taking with them the wagon they were drawing, their driver, Milton Miller, and his companion, George Harrington.

The team and wagon were proceeding west on the street when the horses became frightened, ran to the intersection of Fellows street where they crashed into the rear of a French Dry Cleaning company truck, pushing it against an electric light pole. Besides caving in the truck, the horses also ruined a good set of harness.

WESTINGHOUSE REVEALS NEW RADIO METHOD OF TINPLATING

(By International News Service)

PITTSBURGH — Development of a new process for coating steel plates with tin, with the use of high frequency radiowaves, was announced here today by Westinghouse research laboratories

The radio waves saves tin, and speed up the process of tin-plating at least ten times faster than the methods hitherto employed.

Tin being scarce, the new method is of great practical importance. Food for the armed forces is stored in "tin containers," really steel containers with tin plating.

Milton Parker Vore, 28-year-old California radio engineer, devised the new radio waves apparatus for tinplating.

Essentially the process consists in radio waves, very much like the sort used in transoceanic broadcasting, coiling themselves around rolls of steel sprinkled over with granules of tin

The radio waves tear out metallic electrons, and so heat up the steel rolls rapidly. The tin melts and fuses with the steel with amazing rapidity and smoothness

He Didn't Mind Having His Truck Stolen That Time

MASSILLON—(ONS)—If the result were as pleasing as before, Leo Miller wouldn't mind his truck being "stolen" again.

Miller parked the truck downtown while he went on an errand. When he returned, it was missing. An hour and a half later, police found it in a service station—washed, polished and lubricated.

A station employe had orders to pick up a similar truck belonging to the gas company and service it. Miller's truck was taken by mistake. He didn't mind, for the service was "on the house."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — "The Navy Comes Through" is all adventure on the briny, and it's full of salt water, flying spray, and far horizons. It has roaring sea battles and all you'd expect from the title. Which is why, if you like it, you should give a nod to Tomie Thompson.

Coons

It was Tomie, lean, bespectacled veteran of the RKO miniature department, who launched this "navy" and kept it steaming—through seas no wetter than those usually found in Switzerland or on the studio's Culver City lot.

For Tomie's "navy" never saw the sea. It was land-locked by war, and the only storms it encountered were those marked Priorities and Scarcities.

THAT, of course, was where Tomie came in. Tomie and the sort of ingenuity that will keep the cameras grinding through this era of shortages.

The armed freighter which is scene of most of the action was built on a huge sound stage—built solidly and nailed to the floor. Ordinarily sound stage vessels are built on hyraulic jacks, to rock the boat, but these devices are expensive, they require a heap of metal and, as Tomie set out to prove, they aren't necessary.

The boat on which Pat O'Brien, Jane Wyatt and George Murphy see so much excitement plows through a dry ocean, but it rocks and rolls convincingly on the screen. Tomie Thompson rigged up a Rube Goldbergish contraption—some glass, some chicken wire, some paint, some green leaves—and did all the "rocking" by remote control.

First he took a sheet of glass, painted cloud shapes on it, and set up a motor which would carry it across a track in front of an arclight at a "cloud" speed three feet in 10 minutes. The light threw the "clouds" on a white backdrop behind the ship.

Another sheet of glass was painted black, and scratched with broad, rippling V's, wave-shaped. A rough cylinder of chicken wire, containing the leaves, was placed between this glass and the arclight. While the one glass gave moving clouds, the other "projected" "waves"—which in turn were brought to rippling movement by the shadows of leaves churning in the chicken wire. The whole contraption was rocked, back and forth and sideways, by the motor—and the good freighter braved the briny with no seasick sailors.

TOMIE is proudest of his ship's gun. They "shopped" in all the junk yards for the parts. They used an old oil-well casing for the bore, covered the exterior with rounded wood. They found an old gear box—once used in a bakery "bread line" — and an old ammonia valve for other parts.

The ship, and the gun, were converted during the filming to serve as a German ship and German gun, and there were other tricks.

But none of them, says Tomie was done with mirrors.

Asks Mass Output of Small Carriers

ROSIER URGES OFFSET FOR PACIFIC LOSS

Would Turn Out 'Carrierettes' To Take Offensive To Door of Tokyo.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph Rosier (D., W. Va.) today called for assembly line production of swift, heavily-armed aircraft "carrier-ettes" to offset naval losses in the far Pacific and to lead an offensive to the door of Tokyo.

"It seems to me that engineers and naval architects could devise a type of carrier ship along standard lines that could be produced just as merchant ships are being produced," Rosier said. "We have produced autombiles, trucks, tanks, fighter planes and bombers by the mass production, assembly-line method. Now we are doing the same with merchant ships. Why not take a try at carriers."

Rosier said the kind of carrier he had in mind was smaller than the Lexington or Saratoga, which were converted battle cruisers but that he would not make the ships smaller than sound naval strategy and tactics demanded.

"But I think they should have tremendous speed," he asserted. "They should be armed to the teeth. And I'm not so sure that one or two heavier than average guns ought not to be installed on them."

He pointed out that the senate has just passed a supplemental defense bill calling for construction of 500,000 tons of carriers. This would mean 20 carriers of the capacity of those now under construction, or 25 of the size of the recently lost Yorktown and Wasp.

Rosier said he was confident that if navy men and air experts went into conference around a table they would soon come out with plans for a new and better type carrier than has yet been produced and that they would have an opportunity to take advantage of information gained in current warfare.

He said, also, that as the war progresses and the fleet is expanded the navy will need more carriers not only for added strength but more replacements to maintain normal strength.

"If we can get these carriers and give our fleet the air umbrella which it needs and which it deserves, I am confident that we can drive Japan back to her own territory and carry the war to her very doors," Rosier declared.

OHIO GOVERNOR VOTE CAMPAIGN NEARING CLIMAX

Cleveland, Cincinnati Centers of Activity For M'Sweeney and Bricker.

(By Associated Press)

Ohio's gubernatorial candidates centered their vote-getting efforts in the state's two largest cities—Cleveland and Cincinnati—today as the fall campaign neared its climax.

Gov. John W. Bricker scheduled appearances in Cleveland and Toledo, while his opponent, John McSweeney, went to Cincinnati.

The campaign reaches its climax tomorrow afternoon when the Republican governor engages the Democrats' standard bearer in a debate in the Cleveland City club.

Both candidates made public appearances last night. McSweeney addressing a Democratic rally in Steubenville, reiterated charges that Governor Bricker had placed Ohio's old age pensioners on "the political auction block" and asserted that November pension checks would be smaller than those distributed in October.

The governor, speaking at Cleveland, said his administration had expanded the state's health and welfare services despite "extreme" economies. He cited particularly his administration's support of a bill to grant legal status to hospital associations, claiming it had given thousands of Ohioans low-cost hospital service.

Democratic State Chairman Darrell Jones, in an address prepared for radio broadcast at Columbus, compared Bricker's record as a war governor with that of Gov. James M. Cox who was in office during the first World war. Jones enumerated the war accomplishments of Cox, and asserted that Bricker had done nothing.

In another speech prepared for radio delivery, Ross Boggs, chairman of the Franklin county AFL affiliates, praised Governor Bricker's labor record and termed McSweeney's "unsatisfactory," accusing the Democratic candidate of ducking voting on many controversial measures of vital importance to labor" when he served in congress.

At Cleveland, Sen. Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati Republican, predicted Bricker would be re-elected to a third term by a majority of 150,000 to 200,000 votes.

FORMER EDITOR SAVES WOUNDED

Ohioan Praised For Courage In Rescuing 10 Men In Desert Battle.

(By Associated Press)

CAIRO — The bravery of John Dun, 50, of Tucson, Ariz., a former editor of the Toledo, (O.), Times, was the talk of the western desert today.

Dun, an American field service ambulance driver, saved ten wounded men under intense enemy fire and alone brought three ambulances to safety on the night of Oct. 23-24 — the night the Allied offensive began.

The commanding officer praised Dun for "bravery, unselfish service and devotion to duty."

The three ambulances were mired in the soft sand of the Qattara depression within sight of the enemy lines, armored vehicles had tried to haul them out but could get no traction.

The enemy laid down an intense fire. Explosive bullets tore a gaping hole in the door beside Dun and machine gun fire riddled the vehicles.

Dun jumped out to carry three patients to safety. As he lifted the first one, an explosive bullet hit the injured man in the stomach and killed him.

Dun got the others to a sandbag shelter and lay there three hours with an Italian prisoner who crawled to the shelter and acted as Dun's orderly.

Finally, tanks arrived and towed the ambulances out one by one with Dun steering each one and getting his patients to the hospital.

350 CONSUMERS REGISTER FOR FUEL OIL; LISTING CONTINUES

Consumer registration for fuel oil and kerosene for agricultural and domestic purposes continued at two application centers in Mansfield today after getting off to a good start yesterday with 350 registrations.

Nearly 1,000 persons are expected to register in Mansfield by the time the application centers close Saturday at 4 p. m. and it is expected that Shelby and the four townships of Jackson, Cass, Sharon and Plymouth will have approximately the same number.

Although it was estimated that Richland county as a whole would have about 4,500 registrants, James Bailey, secretary of the county rationing board, said today that he thought this figure was a trifle high.

Applicants with names beginning with the letters S-Z will register in Mansfield Saturday. The majority of the registrations yesterday, 200, were for heating and about 100 for other domestic purposes such as cooking and lighting. Fifty dealers also registered yesterday.

Persons applying for fuel for heat, hot water, industrial and commercial purposes do so at the rationing board office, 43 North Mulberry street. Registration for other purposes including cooking, lighting and miscellaneous domestic use is made at the court house.

Registration in the county exclusive of Mansfield, Shelby and the aforementioned townships, will begin Monday in the various school districts. Applicants will register daily through Wednesday at their respective schools between 4 p. m. and 8:30 p. m. with the exception of Woodville, East Mansfield and Lincoln Heights districts. Registration in the latter three schools begin at 4:30 p. m. and closes at 8:30 p. m.

The remaining portion of the bill, $77, was included in a total of $770.50 allowed by the Bureau for hospital cases in October. All 15 cases reported by the investigator, Mrs. Verla Becker, were approved.

LONDON—(U.P.)—Britain's bone-chilling fall weather is fast converting Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt into a confirmed tea drinker, she admitted today.

Laff-a-Day

"No, I've never done any riveting. Is it anything like putting cloves in a ham?"

An honest porter at the Westbrook Country club almost tricked the magician performing there last night at the Kiwanis Ladies' Night party. After the magician had made a roll of greenbacks disappear, much to the amazement of his guests, he had gone on to another trick, the porter, who had noticed the bills land in a corner nearby carefully picked them up and returned them. The magician, not the least perturbed by the incident, remarked: "Boy, I'm a magician—this isn't a crap game."

Lou Helen Cole, 498½ Cline avenue, is convinced today that these hurly-hurly times do not thwart the intent of honesty. She has recovered her purse, cash and valuable papers to prove it. Yesterday Mrs. James Whittaker, 185 West Third street visited central police station to turn in a woman's purse which she found at Third and Mulberry streets. Detectives Lee Remy and Oscar Krupp examined its contents and decided it was the owner's name which appeared on a driver's license. Visiting that address it developed Miss Cole was the loser, and her property was restored.

A train running two hours behind schedule saved the day for a Mansfield physician and his son last Sunday when they planned to leave early in the morning for the homecoming at Culver Military Academy in Indiana. Dr. O. H. Schettler and his son, Richard, had set the alarm clock at an hour that would give them plenty of time to make the 5.25 a. m. train but they didn't awaken until 7 a. m. They lost no time in telephoning the station where they learned that they still had about 50 minutes in which to make the 5.25 since it was running behind schedule.

Plans for a big Halloween doughnut sale sponsored by the Junior Red Cross council of Senior high school went up in a greaseless smoke yesterday when the shop, which was to make the doughnuts, notified council members that under present conditions it was impossible to get enough flour for such a large order. So the 32 pupils who were going to sell the doughnuts downtown Saturday and deliver party orders all day are now trying to think of another scheme for raising the money for sending soldiers' and sailors' kits to various U. S. camps.

What 'Commandos' Fight For

Activities of Girl Scouts and Dutch Relief Fund

GIRL SCOUTS

Another of Mansfield's character-building agencies, the Girl Scout organization, was started little more than five years ago and today it has a membership of 378.

Budgeted for an allocation of $3,040 from the Community War Chest, the Girl Scouts in Mansfield have an unusually high enrollment as compared to that in towns similar in size.

The Scouts are divided into three age groups. There are 60 Brownies from seven to nine years old; intermediate scouts, 10 to 14 years, total 252 and senior scouts, 15 to 18 years, total 66.

The scout organization has a staff of 78 trained volunteer workers on its council and staff leadership corps.

Its program offers training in citizenship, homemaking, care of children, sewing and cooking. A summer camp is sponsored for its members every year.

Recreational programs have given way during the war emergency to community service projects. Girl Scouts have worked in the street sale of war bonds and stamps, sorted and counted tax stamps for the blind, participated in Community Fund and USO drives and are Red Cross workers.

One of their current projects is gift remembrances for patients at the Richland county sanitarium.

QUEEN WILHELMINA FUND

Help for every Netherlander in need in all parts of the world is the purpose of the Queen Wilhelmina Fund for which the small sum of $335 is being sought from the Community War Chest.

Men, women and children, recent victims of the Japanese aggression in the Netherlands East Indies, as well as the earlier refugees from Holland, are being assisted with food, clothing and shelter.

In Nazi-held Holland intricate rationing systems made necessary food stuffs unavailable. Acorns, thistles and the leaves of wild plants are supposed to complete the daily diet. Fats and meats of any form are rarities. The health of all, particularly the youth, is rapidly becoming undermined.

The avowed purpose of breaking up the people of Holland and deporting one third of its able men and boys is a real danger to the existence of the Dutch people. Cooperation with the Nazis or evacuation to distant regions faces the Hollanders today.

JAPS ATTACKING GUADALCANAL IN REPEATED RAIDS

Try To Wear Down Americans Pinned In Area Around Henderson Field.

knocked out or their planes were unable to take to the skies because of damage, destruction or lack of gas.

Latest reports from Australia showed that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's airmen still were attempting to relieve the pressure on U. S. forces in the southern Solomons through repeated raids on Japanese shipping and positions. Flying fortresses bombed four more Japanese ships at Buin in a new raid Thursday on the Japanese base in the northern Solomons.

That U. S. airmen still dominated the skies in the southern Solomons as late as last Monday (Washington date) was shown by the navy communique which reported two attacks against Jap positions on Guadalcanal and nearby Rekata bay.

In a raid on Rekata, 115 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, U. S. aircraft attacked shore installations and destroyed four seaplanes.

Later the U. S. planes bombed enemy gun positions to the westward of Henderson airfield and destroyed an anti-aircraft battery and ammunition dump on Guadalcanal.

Barring unforeseen developments, it was apparent, however, that the Japanese troops were using only part of their full strength in attacks against American lines in preparation for a final assault from several directions.

Report 30,000 U. S. Troops On Island.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The British radio today quoted "unofficial estimates" that there are 20,000 to 30,000 American troops on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons. The broadcast, heard by CBS, attributed the estimate to no specific source.

The British radio also quoted a dispatch from R. W. Robson, editor of the Pacific Islands Monthly, which said the situation in the Solomons "is not one for optimism."

British Bombers Hit Jap Base In Burma.

NEW DELHI—(INS)—A joint communique issued by British and United States army headquarters in India today said that British Blenheim bombers attacked Japanese-held airdromes at Phakokku and Hwebo in Burma.

High explosives were smashed down upon the airdrome runways and buildings. Fires were started in the building areas.

The communique confirmed Monday's Japanese attack on Assam in India. It was announced that an American fighter pilot destroyed one of the attacking planes while British anti-aircraft fire dropped another.

PAYS TO LEARN ABOUT POLICE

Gives Up Idea Of Being Detective After Session In Court.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Elmer McCarty, 22, who said he always wanted to be a detective, today paid $30 for his first lesson and promptly retired from the profession.

Several days ago, McCarty reported to police that he had been robbed of $85 and upon being questioned admitted his report was false and that he only sought information of proper procedure in police investigations.

He got it and police showed him through the police station, and then took him through court where he was fined $30 for making a false report.

HE'S HIRED

Patrolman's So Good at Delivering Babies He's Got an Order.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Patrolman Bernard Jennings' proficiency in delivering babies may get him a repeat call. A young woman, who soon will have a baby, summoned him yesterday to help a friend who was having a baby. The young woman was mightily impressed with Jennings skill. "From now on you're my doctor," she said.

BLACKOUT SET

Columbus Undergoes First Total Darkening Test Tonight.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Civilian defense officials scheduled the first total blackout for Columbus' metropolitan area for tonight and warned, "we are going to enforce the blackout regulations more strictly."

Sectional blackouts have been held in Ohio's capital city but sirens will signal about 9 p. m. an order for "lights out" in Columbus and suburban Bexley, Grandview, Marble Cliff, Upper Arlington and Hanford.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Six blue stars already are displayed in a window at the home of Mrs. Mary Hegedus Chocholoukian born Cleveland woman - and soon there will be a seventh.

Her youngest son, Edward, 19, has signed up with the air cadets and expects to be in service soon.

IN NEW PHASE

Eden Says Britain Shifting From Defensive Operations.

GLASGOW, Scotland — (AP) Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declared in a speech here today that Britain now is shifting away from the defensive.

Eden told the Scottish Unionist (Conservative party) conference that the war was at the start of a new phase. He said that Britain had air command over the northern coast of France and has proved that her planes can attack Italy by day and night.

statements were made in testimony before the senate labor committee.

The CIO chieftain declared that there is grave danger that "we will bring to the manpower problem the same kind of irresponsibility and planlessness that has characterized—and is still characterizing—our treatment of the materials problem."

He said that the war effort is lacking in unified leadership, and continued:

"I propose, therefore, that this committee request the president of the United States to convoke within the next few days a conference of selected capable leaders, a conference to be attended by representatives of congress, the government, management, labor and agriculture.

"I suggest that the president be requested to convoke this conference committee of the nation to formulate plans for the establishment of the necessary machinery for the integration of our procurement, production and manpower agencies and resources under a unified directing and planning body."

Murray declared that too many cross currents and pressures are having a bad effect on the national morale.

"Our nation has come far since it first turned its attention to the problem of production for war," he said.

"We have reached the stage in our armed conflict and our productive operations where we can no longer afford to delay the complete integration of our entire economic organizations with every aspect of our war program—procurement, production, manpower—under unified and adequately planned direction and leadership.

Meanwhile, compulsory labor legislative proposals were assailed before the subcommittee by J. G. Luhrsen, secretary of the railway labor executive association.

In the name of railway labor, he demanded creation of a centralized war authority to plan not only distribution of manpower for war industry but men for the army and navy and distribution of war production.

"There are some people who think that compulsion is the cure-all for everything," he said.

"It is my firm opinion, after 30 years' of work with management, that both organized labor and management are opposed to compulsory national service legislation.

"It will not cure anything. It cannot possibly do the job when contracts and materials are not properly distributed."

As Labor Confers on Part In War Chest

Labor and management of Mansfield industrial plants conferred this week over plans in connection with raising 68 per cent of the total Community War Chest goal of $140,377 for Mansfield and Richland county. Both the Richland county council of the CIO and the executive committee of the AFL have endorsed the agreement between their national organizations and national war chest organizations. Industrial unions, however, have yet to take action on going "all-out" for the Mansfield-Richland county campaign. Shown here are the labor committees named to work with campaign officials in the drive. At top, from left to right, are: Glenn Heston, Richland county AFL recording secretary; W. Lee Slagle, county AFL business agent; Clarence D. Fike, president of the county federation; Fred B. Hout, major general of the Community War Chest campaign: Rudolph Schneider, co-chairman of the public service division. Members of the CIO group are shown below. They are, back row, left to right, William Bell, Delano lodge president; Desmond Walker, president of the rubber workers; Roy Waxler, chairman of the CIO committee for the Community War Chest; Steven Thomas; front row, J. Harry Gerhart, Delano lodge, co-major of the industrial division; John Gross, president of the Richland county council of CIO: Hout, and Michael Filipeli, recording secretary of the county CIO council.

two of the few buildings remaining intact in the business district, were converted into emergency hospitals. Fallen trees and other debris delayed out of town relief crews.

Rea Nelson, undertaken, said he expected there were many more dead buried in the ruins.

"They just can't get in there until daybreak. We don't have any idea how many may be missing," he said.

Some of the escapes were amazing.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Fanning were uninjured when the tornado wrecked their bedroom, but the featherbed on which they were sleeping and the comfort which they had over them vanished.

Berryville, one of the oldest communities in the Ozark region, is an important wholesale and jobbing center, servicing the northwest portion of Arkansas, and adjacent areas in Missouri.

The prosperous wholesale houses and canneries, the life source for the community, were virtually all destroyed as was the large combination grade and high school.

Bootlegging Arrests Decrease Under Sugar Rationing.

WASHINGTON (AP)— Sugar rationing is slashing the moonshiner's output of illegal liquor.

Sugar is basic for the moonshiner's product, and he could be smacked with a penalty for sugar bootlegging if he tried to build up his depleted sugar stock. During July, August and September this year agents seized 1,536 stills and arrested 2,873 persons, compared with 2,782 seizures and 3,581 arrests in the same quarter-year of 1941.

BRICKER SAYS SURPLUS WILL KEEP SCHOOLS GOING IN WAR

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The state treasury surplus will enable Ohio's public schools to carry on their present programs throughout the war, Gov. Bricker declared today.

"The $20,000,000 surplus which we have accumulated is a guarantee that there will be funds to keep the schools of Ohio operating on a high standard during the uncertain days ahead," he told the Northeastern Teachers association.

Asserting the schools "faced closing because of a deficit exceeding $18,000,000" when his administration took office four years ago, Bricker added:

"We promised that we would take care of that deficit, put the schools on a pay-as-you-go basis, and make the school foundation fund payments on time.

"The record shows we have accomplished this. Twelve million dollars of the inherited school deficit has been paid, and the remaining $6,000,000 needed to retire the debt reposes in the state treasury. Local school boards were paid in full, in cash and on time.

Bricker told the teachers their "splendid work" in connection with rationing, salvage and war bond sales had "earned the gratitude of every citizen."

be necessary. No report of adjustment has been made to the adjutant general's office."

Kenneth L. Beal, 37 Arch street, a helper in the city garbage disposal department, is the victim of the city administration's action. After the amount paid him by the state for attending annual encampment of his state guard regiment at Camp Hocking in July, Beal appealed to Service Director Fred B. Wolff and Locke.

Failing to get any satisfaction from these sources Beal wrote to Gov. John W. Bricker, who advised him the matter was being referred to the office of the adjutant general for adjustment.

Records in the office of City Auditor Paul L. Kelley show Beal resigned from city employ Sept. 30, no reimbursement being noted in the financial records.

The nine-month fatality total this year was 21,290, against 27,900 for the same period last year. In September alone, there was a decrease of 1,490 in traffic fatalities, representing a 40 per cent drop from September of last year.

WPB OFFICIALS PUT ON CARPET

Committee Demands Explanation of Priorities Order.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A congressional subcommittee has called high-ranking officials of the war production board to appear Monday and explain a WPB order halting the issuance of priority certificates for private home building, it was disclosed today.

Representative Hebert (D., La.) a member of the subcommittee, charged that congress was promised specifically by WPB officials last summer before appropriating additional money for war housing that "private industry would be given an even break with public building."

He said the WPB order was "an unexplainable reversal of form."

BRITISH ARMY MAKES NEW GAIN ON EGYPT FRONT

to declare war on Britain, obviously hoping to gain the assistance of the once powerful French fleet.

On the Egyptian battlefront, Italian headquarters reported that Axis forces yesterday repulsed a fresh British attempt to land seaborne troops behind the lines and beat off repeated attacks by strong Allied armored units.

The Fascist war bulletin said the British twice attempted to set troops ashore in the vicinity of Matruh, 100 miles west of the actual fighting front, only to be driven off with heavy losses.

The Italian command admitted that British imperials attacking on the Alamein line, 80 miles west of Alexandria, succeeded in making "initial penetrations," but asserted that they were promptly halted.

Dispatches from Cairo said Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's British 8th army was slowly forging ahead through hidden Axis minefields, attacking by night and consolidating their new-won positions in daylight.

Reports from the front indicated that the British were getting into position to strike at Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's main force, but said it might be several days before a show-down test of armored strength develops.

An Associated Press correspondent in Cairo said that while U. S. army fliers were playing a major role in shielding the British desert fighters and attacking the enemy, American ground troops had not yet gone into action in the Middle East.

On the Soviet front, Red army headquarters announced that Russian tanks had won a critical battle of armored forces in Stalingrad's northside factory district had reported that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief offensive had smashed into German defenses in the Volga-Don corridor.

The Russians said 1,500 Nazis were killed and 16 tanks destroyed in the Stalingrad battle.

There was still no indication how near the city Marshal Timoshenko's relief forces had advanced in their drive against the 40-mile German "barricade" which guards the main Nazi siege armies on the north. Red army troops have been hacking into the Nazi flank for several weeks.

In the Caucasus, the Russians suffered a new setback on the Nalchik plateau—the second in 24 hours—as the Germans threw large numbers of tanks into an assault apparently aimed at reaching the Georgian military highway to Tiflis.

On the Black sea coast, in the western Caucasus, Red army troops were credited with dislodging the Germans from a fortified position and killing 1,200 Axis invaders northeast of Tuapse.

District Attorney James T. Burke said the states case against Coneys would be concluded today. He said Captain of Detectives James E. Childers would conclude his testimony concerning the confession Coneys dictated to him after his arrest.

The confession was introduced as evidence yesterday.

One of the world's deadliest air weapons, the ME 109 has been the spearhead of Germany's celebrated Luftwaffe. Fitted with a Daimler-Benz 12-cylinder 1150 horsepower engine, the Nazi fighter has a top speed of 354 miles an hour. Armament consisted of two .30 calibre machine guns and three .20 mm. shell-firing cannon. It is a single-seat pursuit fighter with a wing spread of 30 feet, and an overall length of 27 feet, 6 inches.

Credited with downing eight Allied planes, indicated by a series of trophy stripes on the tail, the Nazi ace was later brought down by anti-aircraft fire during the bombing of Coventry. Two Dutch, three British and three French planes were included in the bag.

Accompanying the plane here from Lima, where it is currently on exhibition, will be commentators to explain technical details and relate the story of the Messerschmitt's downfall for the benefit of visitors.

Use of the showroom for the exhibition has been donated by R. E. Moorhead.

REVEAL HITLER SOUGHT SECRET

friends are now on trial, was given the Iron Cross when he reached Germany. Again both attorneys declined to draw out the reason.

Though Herman Goering, No. 2 Nazi, has an ample supply, the German government does not toss around its highest medals with abandon, and especially to a 22-year-old youth whose previous military experience was limited to a short stretch in the reserve officer's training corps in Chicago.

This leaves the presumption that the German high command thought Haupt had supplied valuable information on the bombsight.

The probability that Haupt actually was sent for by the Nazi government was supported by two other witnesses yesterday. Barbara Kluczyk, landlady of the Chicago house where Herbert lived with his parents, said that as the youth was preparing to leave the country he made this unexplained statement:

"I wish I could stay. But my time is up soon."

Also, there was the testimony of William Leibl, now a private in the U. S. marine corps, who spoke with Haupt in Germany.

He said Haupt bragged to him of his exploits and his rank as a lieutenant in the German army (at 22) and told of his trip from America. Leibl continued:

"He said he left Chicago with two pals (one was Wolfgang Wergin, son of two defendants) and in swimming the Rio Grande into Mexico one boy was shot (this fugitive was unidenufied). With the help of German consuls they flew from Mexico to South America, then boarded a Japanese boat to Yokohama, going later to Tokyo.

"Again aided by the German consul they took a blockade-breaking ship manned by a German crew and reached France, then moving on to Germany."

The special interest the German consulates in Mexico and Japan showed in two young Americans was regarded as significant.

All this, of course, came as sensational sidelights to the case in U. S. district court against Max and Erna Haupt, Walter and Lucille Froehling, and Otto and Kate Wergin.

The government, having pictured the enormity of the sabotage planned by Haupt and the other seven, sought to link the defendants directly to the agent's plans.

LOANS FOR EMPLOYED WOMEN

We're addressing any employed woman in this community who has a problem which cash can solve. Borrowing money is never wise if it means making difficulties worse . . but there are certain circumstances in which a well-planned loan is the best way to get out of debt many times. Obligations which seem discouraging when added up in a lump can be paid off comfortably when broken down into monthly payments. And when ready cash isn't available for needed medical or dental work, clothing, for training which will increase one's earning power—then a loan is also common-sense. Here at Personal Finance Company we specialize in serving women. If you need cash—$10 to $250 or more—we'll see that you get it without embarrassment or delay, without involving your friends or employer and without the need for putting up special security. We make loans on just your own signature — because we have found that business women in this community honor their obligations.

There is no difficulty in handling monthly payments on a loan here. For example: $5.53 a Month Repays a $75 Loan in 12 Months.

If you need cash, we'll be glad to serve you. Special quick service during lunch hour. Come in or phone then if that's best for you. It will be a pleasure to serve you.

CHAPTER III

"Miss Clarkson, you're going the wrong way. Mr. Nolan's room is here."

Livia retraced her steps, without looking at the nurse.

"Oh, I thought he might be too ill to see me," she mumbled.

"So did I," said the nurse, "until I told him your name."

So he had remembered her! She softly opened the door and tiptoed into the room. He was sitting up on the narrow, white bed, his arm hidden in bandages.

"I'm sorry I ran away last night," Livia said, "I—I had to get home—and—er."

"Sit down." His head motioned her to the white chair by the bed. She sat down. "Will you do me a great favor?" he asked.

"Oh, yes; anything I can."

"Will you take off your hat?" She smiled and obeyed. "Ah, that's better." His eyes lingered on her gold-red hair with satisfaction. "Don't ever wear a hat."

"I didn't come here to talk about me. You—they said in the paper you were seriously injured." He grinned deprecatingly. "It's nothing."

Then there was silence between them.

She smiled at him. "Were you surprised when they said I was here?"

He nodded.

"I thought I'd lost you. I thought you'd disappeared into the night." He rolled a cigaret expertly with his free hand and smoked awhile in silence.

"I wasn't sure if you had any friends—and the paper said—" He cut her short.

"Don't apologize for coming here. It was swell of you."

"But what will you do about your job?"

"I'm insured," he said briefly. Then, "why are you in Los Angeles? The movies?"

"I was born here, and I was going to be a schoolmistress. But I'm not going to be. And I live with my mother and sister." She told him about winning the "charm Girl" competition. "And goodness," she looked at her watch, "I've got to go home and tell them."

"I know some of the fellows in that studio—d'ye want me to talk to them?" he asked.

"No, no, please don't," said Livia hastily, "Everything has been taken care of."

"Can you act."

"I was the leading lady in our high school plays," she said solemnly. And detected a grin on his mouth. "Well, anyway, I'm as good as some of those stars they pay thousands of dollars to," she said defiantly. "No, the only thing that's worrying me is how to tell my family." She turned to him tragically, "Can you see me as a school teacher?"

"No," he agreed smilingly.

Livia had a bright idea.

"You know all about the movies. Would you talk to my mother? I mean on the telephone, and say that it's quite respectable and all that—if you feel well enough?"

"What's your telephone number?" She told him.

"When shall I call?"

"About nine o'clock tonight." She looked at her watch, "I must go." She paused at the door. "You really don't mind doing this for me?"

"I'll be talking to you, too, won't I?"

"Yes, of course. Well, thanks a lot." She flashed her brightest smile, and was gone.

Bruce turned off the light over the hospital bed and closed his eyes. Her visit had tired him. But he was happy.

"That's my girl," he told the nurse who had announced Livia.

"Yes? But now you must rest."

Promptly at nine o'clock he telephoned Livia.

"No, you can't talk to mother tonight," she whispered into the receiver, "She's not well. One of her headaches—no, nothing serious."

"Then you haven't told her?"

"Who is that, Livia?" Mrs. Clarkson called from the living room sofa.

"Oh—er—a friend of mine—a man I met the other night at a party."

"Does he want me?"

"No, mother, don't get up. It's nothing."

"I'll call you later," she told Bruce. "Good-bye." She put the receiver down on the hook quickly.

Livia was accustomed to her mother's blinding headaches. Her eyes were weak, and the constant pouring over books and correction of exercises resulted in bad headaches. They soon passed, but this was distinctly not the time for Livia to tell her that she had won the "Charm Girl" competition.

She thought of telling Vera. But Vera was going out tonight. She was going out with George Maxwell, who was more or less accepted as Vera's fiance. George worked a weekly race sheet called "The Winner." They were going to a movie.

"But I'll stay if you think mother needs me," Vera said to Livia.

"No. I can look after her—go with George and have a good time."

Livia slept soundly. But she awakened at six in the morning on a high note of excitement. This was the day on which her whole future was to be decided. She was careful not to wake her mother or Vera when she went downstairs. A copy of the "Gazette" was outside the kitchen door.

Her pictures, four of them, were on the front page. And a new version of her life story. She read that her father had been one of the civic founders of Los Angeles. What she actually told the reporter was that he had been a business man in Los Angeles. There was even a picture of their old home on the hill.

"Mother ought to like that," Livia told herself without conviction. Her mother would hate Livia's, or rather the reporters insistence on their "abject poverty today."

Her appointment at the studio was for nine o'clock.

"I must tell mother before I go," she said to herself. But should she awaken her mother? "She's not well," she thought, and then said aloud, "Livia Clarkson, you're a coward."

Her mother would weep and beg her not to go to the studio. And they would have another quarrel. Oh, why was her mother so prejudiced? "After all, it's only a test, I may not get a contract." But she was sure she would. "When I come back, waving a contract for a thousand a week, then mother will be glad. Oh, then she can stop working, no more headaches. I'll buy back the old house to live in—not for a school." Yes, she was doing it for her mother and Vera as much as for herself.

It was seven o'clock now. Soon Vera and her mother would awaken. Something had to be decided—and quickly. The solution came suddenly.

"I'll leave a note attached to the paper, and go before they get up."

She left the note and newspaper on the kitchen table, and immediately felt better. Swiftly she brushed her hair, took infinite pains with her make-up, gulped down some coffee. And trembling with excitement, Livia left for the studio.

Livia took a taxi. It was extravagant, but, she said to herself, when she was a movie star, she would have her own car and chauffeur.

The big iron gates at the studio were closed, but there was a smaller entrance on the side. Here in a glassed-in cupboard sat a gray-haired man in uniform.

"Good morning," Livia smiled winningly at him. He waited politely. So, they hadn't told him? And where was the executive who had promised to meet her at the gate? For a moment her confidence diminished, but it came back at once when, after telling the gateman, "I am Livia Clarkson," his face relaxed, and he said:

"Oh, yes — just been reading about you." A copy of the "Gazette" was under his coffee cup. "Mr. Nevins—" he was the executive Livia had expected at the gate—"Mr. Nevins telephoned me he'll be a bit late. But you're to go to the make-up department. He'll meet you there."

Livia was walking in the direction he had pointed when he called her back.

"Oh, Miss Clarkson—here's a telegram for you."

Who could it be? She tore it open. "Good luck," she read. It was signed "Bruce."

"It's from Bruce Nolan," she told the gateman. "D'ye know him?"

"Sure do—one of the best stunt men in the business. Too bad about his accident."

"It wasn't serious — just his arm," Livia told him happily. When she was a star, she would do a lot for Bruce. He was too nice to be a stunt man, risking his life for other people.

She walked with dancing feet to the long, low wooden building. Opening the door of the first booth, she sprang back with a startled, "Oh." A man in white coat was leaning over a famous star painting her lips with a long, thin brush.

"I'm so sorry," said Livia—"I'm —I'm —" The star smiled at her, and pointed to the "Gazette" on her dressing table.

"Miss Clarkson?"

"Yes," breathed Livia. It was strange to be talking to a real star. "I—er—I have to be made-up for my test," she told the star shyly.

"You can have Smithy. He won't be a minute more." The man in the white coat glared at Livia.

"I have something else to do."

"But you'll do me a favor and take care of Miss Clarkson?" the star said.

"I don't want to be any trouble," said Livia.

"It's no trouble, is it Smithy?"

"Not if you say so," he replied grudgingly. The star left with a parting "Good luck," and Livia sat down carefully in her chair.

"Can you make me as beautiful as she is?" Livia asked Smithy.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"That, my dear lady, is not possible. I will do the best I can." Livia dwindled before his cold, impersonal glare. But she couldn't be that bad. After all, she had won the "Charm Girl" contest.

"My cheek bones are rather high," she said timidly as he continued to stare at her as though she were something in a museum. "Maybe you could do something to tone them down?"

"My dear young lady, I am not a magician. I am an artist. Your cheek bones are high. That is your misfortune." He suddenly swung the chair backward.

"I mustn't irritate him any more," Livia thought as he slapped a brownish grease paint on her face. But she made a last plea. "My eyes could you—" she thought he was going to burst as he glared down on her.

"Look, Miss Clarkson, I have made up the biggest stars in the business. And not once have I been told how I should do my work. You stick to your job. I'll stick to mine."

Livia choked back a desire to laugh. His red face and little black eyes were so funny.

"I'm sorry," she told him, "I didn't mean—"

"You didn't mean, you didn't mean," he mumbled.

Mr. Nevins appeared at the door. He was a welcome interruption for Livia.

"And how's the 'Charm Girl?'" he asked her.

"Fine," she lied. Smithy put down the brush with which he was curving a line on Livia's lips.

"How can I work with all this conversation going on?" he asked the world reproachfully. Nevins winked at Livia.

"I'll be outside when you're through."

She was glad when it was over.

"Am I all right?" she asked Nevins.

"Oh, sure. Hurry; we're late."

They walked swiftly to the sound stage. It seemed empty and stuffy. Their footsteps were loud on the wide, dark floor. They picked their way carefully over a network of cables to the far side of the stage.

Carpenters were setting up the scene; a small, three-sided room with bright arc lamps converging on the only piece of furniture in it—a sofa. Livia was introduced to the man who was to share the test with her. His hand was damp.

"Howd'ye do," he said in a high, British voice. He tugged nervously at his collar and added, "Beastly bore all this."

They sat on the sofa while the cameraman and his assistant arranged the lights. It was all done casually. And no-one there seemed to care or realize that this was the most important day in Livia's eighteen years. Was all picture-making as casual as this? Maybe it was just the salary that was exciting. Oh, yes, the salary. And her drooping spirits revived.

They were on the set for an hour before the director appeared. He smiled at Livia and shook her hand, said hello to the Britisher, and rehearsed them for their scenes. It was easier than Livia had anticipated. The Britisher was a singer. All she had to do was say, "Do you really?" in the middle of his song. Then they had to kiss. Then Livia had to look into the camera and say, "I love you, Richard."

Livia tried to forget everyone on the set as she listened to the song in which the Britisher swore eternal love to her. But despite her concentration, she was aware of every little movement on the set.

She was glad when the director stopped them and explained to the singer that he must look at Livia and not at the camera. When the time came for her to say, "Do you really?" she thought of Bruce, and still thinking of him, kissed the singer at the end of the song. But she could hardly forbear an expression of disgust. The Britisher was a lover of the onion.

It was over. Mr. Nevins told her she was fine. So did the director.

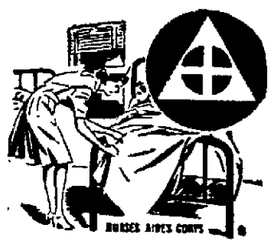
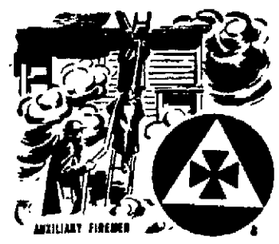
SUPPORT THE

CIVILIAN DEFENSE COUNCIL





No. 3 In a Series on Patriotism

Hundreds—thousands of homes in Richland County, and wherever this message is read, have sent a loved one into the far-off, the unknown, in order that we may continue a free, unshackled way of life.

Other thousands of homes are contributing to and assisting those who have gone, by following our national policy of production and defense. It will take the combined effort of all homes and the co-operation of every member of every home to bring about the successful, speedy termination of this war. The thorough organizing of civilian defense and a willingness—an eagerness—to serve, will bring about an army at home just as powerful in producing results as is the army in the field—and truly an army behind an army.

Is your home in this Civilian Defense Army? Is dad an Air Raid Warden and does mother have her first aid? There is a branch of this home service where everyone can play an active part in protecting the lives and property of self and neighbor—even the younger folks can study and train as messengers.

Don't be a deserter from this home army, but send the word out to the army ahead that we are organized and actively enlisted against the enemy, in this United States Army of Civilian Defense, and that no power on earth can hope to have success over such a mighty combination—the army on the line and the army just behind.

Tygers Given Only Slight Edge Over Trojans Tonight

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

It is rapidly becoming unanimous.

Now the Marion Star says that Marion is too big for the North Central Ohio league, and too tough for the kind of football competition it has been getting in the N. C. O., and it is time for the Presidents to move into faster company and become accustomed to the kind of football it ran into when Sandusky romped over the Prexies 20-0.

And the Star prints the 1940 census figures for cities in the N. C. O. showing the following populations: Marion, 30,817; Ashland, 12,453; Mt. Vernon, 10,122; Bucyrus, 9,727; Galion, 8,685; Shelby, 6,643.

This is an argument which has been hinted more or less broadly in other cities over the N. C. O. circuit, but none of the member schools have shown an inclination to take the lead in coming right out and saying to Marion: "You are too tough. Get out."

Although that is just about what Marion did a few years back when the Presidents handed an ultimatum to the league which, in so many words, declared: "Mansfield is too tough. We're not going to play them any more. If we have to play them to stay in the league, then either Mansfield gets out or we do."

And it was a happy day for Mansfield and the N. C. O. league and all concerned when the Tygers decided to branch out into what has become known as big time football. Whether Marion is ready for big time or just faster time has not been divulged.

N. C. O. league members have been given an unembarrassing and easy way of nudging Marion out of the circuit, without a word being spoken about the football situation.

The fact that Marion wants to play its basketball games this winter on a junior high gym floor that is admittedly inadequate for high school games will bring the basketball question up for decision at the league meeting immediately following the football season. And it could very easily develop into a vote on Marion membership.

If Marion school officials follow the sentiment of Marion fans, the Presidents will retire from the league without a vote.

No one can safely predict what would be the outcome if a vote on Marion membership were taken, since the mental processes of educators are often devious, obscure and unexplainable.

But if the fans of the various N. C. O cities were to be consulted, Marion would find itself singularly friendless in the ranks of its athletic foemen.

Mt. Vernon still burns over Marion's charges of dirty football this fall, and a Marion charge that Ashland scouted Marion practice session still rankles in Ashland in spite of a speedy apology on the part of Marion officials

"That's a heck of a thing to be accused of," retorted Ashland Coach Bruckner in his deepest basso profundo.

Mansfield next season might welcome games with both Marion and Ashland in case their one-time rivals can be interested. Both schools could have given the Tygers a tough way to go this season.

Athletic Director Harry Mehock has indicated he would like to see Ashland and Marion on the Mansfield schedule in 1943 in an effort to solve the transportation problem which can easily develop into a major headache by next fall.

Favor Mauriello Over Lee Savold

NEW YORK—(INS)—Tami Mauriello of New York rules a 7 to 5 choice over Lee Savold, Des Moines for their ten round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The fight will prove nothing more than which of the young men is entitled to the higher rating in the struggle for glory as the outstanding "out-of-service" heavyweight.

Buckeyes Battle Badgers

18 Games Booked For Ohio College Elevens.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's only unbeaten college grid teams—Wilberforce and the Bucks of Ohio State—tangle with top-flight foes this week-end in the headline attractions of an 18-game program involving Buckeye squads.

* * *

Navy and Notre Dame stage their annual fracas at Cleveland's Municipal stadium Saturday afternoon, adding a bit of spice to the Ohio menu, with the South Bend Irish definitely favored to grab the laurels.

Ohio State, the nation's No. 1 team and leader of the Western Conference, had no such edge over the Badgers of Wisconsin, whom the Bucks battle at Madison, Wis. No one looked for a repetition of last season's 46-34 free-for-all grabbed by the Bucks, each club having displayed a much tighter defense this fall.

Wilberforce, winner of four straight—all against out-of-state opposition—tangles with Lincoln University of Missouri in the annual homecoming contest over in Greene county, and the invaders are not considered underdogs to the Ohioans.

The outstanding game in the Ohio conference sends Otterbein's league leaders against Denison's Big Ted at Westerville. The Otters have won three straight, while Denison has been tied once in three starts.

John Carroll, undefeated in the conference, dropped its second game in five starts last night, a 21-0 affray with Western Reserve University.

Ohio Northern's Polar Bears also can get into the first place deadlock by trimming Muskingum at New Concord, if Denison beats Otterbein. Bowling Green, beaten but once in five starts, makes its first conference start by entertaining Kent State.

Other conference games, all between defeated squads, send Wooster to Mount Union, Heidelberg to Capital and Kenyon to Oberlin.

Only one tilt is on tonight, Illinois Wesleyan playing at Youngstown, but Saturday's schedule is complete. Here are the other contests:

Boston University at Cincinnati; Baldwin Wallace at Akron; Wright-Patterson Field vs. West Liberty Teachers at Wheeling, W. Va.; Ohio U. at Miami; Marshall at Dayton; Bluffton at Grand Rapids, Mich.; U. S. Coast Guard (Manhattan Beach, N. Y.) at Toledo (night); Miami Naval Radios vs. Findlay at Hamilton (night) and Ohio Wesleyan at Case (night).

Swinehart Sets Westie-B Pace

Benny Swinehart again led the Westinghouse "B" bowling league at Colony alleys last night with a 540 total, but Everett Croskey chalked up high game with 220.

SURPRISE! SURPRISE! LITTLES GET BIG ONES

CHICAGO — (INS) — Lawson Little, the widely known golfer, reported today that when he telephoned his father in Monterey, Cal., to announce that a daughter, Linda, had been born to Mrs. Little in Chicago, he got another bit of news right back.

His father, Col. William Lawson Little, asked "did you get that telegram I sent you?"

On receiving his son's negative reply, Col. Little said:

"Well, I was just telling you your draft board had sent notice you were up for possible reclassification."

Little now is in 3-A.

League Lead Remains Tie

Joe Leathers Chalks 628 B-Loop Series.

Kent Rummel and Mansfield Printing remained in a tie for the Commercial "B" bowling lead at Colony alleys last night, each scoring a 2-1 win, while four teams are tied for third place.

Joe Leathers of Long Bar hit a hot streak for individual scoring honors with a 628 total on a string of 165-229-234, and his third game was high for the league.

* * *

Mansfield Rug and Linoleum marked up a 1019 game with Frank Burton getting 221, Jim Weems 206, Graf and Brinkman each 205 and Hipp 182.

Ohio Picked By Short Nod

Georgia Selected For Victory Over Alabama.

By HERB BARKER

NEW YORK—(AP)—Taking the weekly whack at the football program and expecting nothing but the worst:

Ohio State-Wisconsin: National and sectional title hopes at stake here. Fekete and Sarringhaus vs. Harder and Hirsch. This should be tough, gruelling action all the way. The nod goes to Ohio State.

Alabama-Georgia: Ditto for this one which may settle the southeastern title, subject to later argument from Georgia Tech and L. S. U. Stringing along with the offense, Georgia.

Penn-Army: Top battle of the east. Army.

Princeton-Harvard: Jumping on the Tiger band-wagon. Princeton, hesitantly.

Stanford-U. C. L. A.: Stanford might surprise but U. C. L. A.

Baylor-Texas Christian: Unbeaten T. C. U.

Navy-Notre Dame: Nothing in Navy's record to show the Sailors can cope with Angelo Bertelli et al. Notre Dame.

Georgia Tech-Duke: A timid vote for Tech.

Georgetown-Boston College: Boston must rate the edge.

Northwestern-Minnesota: The Gophers seem to be back in winning stride and should be exceedingly tough from here on in. Minnesota.

Illinois-Michigan: Injuries may hurt the Illini. Michigan.

Iowa Naval-Indiana: Bierman's Naval Cadets have been well rested. Iowa Naval.

Great Lakes-Missouri: No telling what Great Lakes is going to do next. Missouri.

Southern Methodist-Texas: Texas.

Brown-Yale: A flier on Yale.

Cornell-Columbia: Columbia.

Louisiana State-Tennessee: Another very tough one. Weakly. Tennessee.

Vanderbilt-Tulane: Vanderbilt.

Nebraska-Kansas: Should be safe for Nebraska.

Oregon State-Washington: Oregon State, doubtfully.

Oregon-California: California gets this vote.

Purdue-Iowa: Taking Tommy Farmer and Iowa.

Skipping over the chalklines otherwise: Duquesne over St. Vincent, Kentucky over George Washington; Pitt over Carnegie; Detroit over Marquette.

Bulldogs Run Over Shelby

Simpson Hangs Up 26-0 Gridiron Victory.

John Simpson junior high's Bulldogs continued on their undefeated way yesterday with a 26-0 victory at Shelby, scoring in each of the first three periods.

Limited to 150 pounds by demand of the Shelby team, Simpson lost only "gigantic" George Thomas, who was three pounds over the weight limit. But Woodberry took over Thomas' fullback job in acceptable fashion, and the Bulldogs weren't slowed down.

It took Simpson just three plays after the opening kickoff to push over their first touchdown. The kickoff was returned to the Bulldog 40. Woodberry got away for 35 yards, Cline got fine blocking on a jaunt to the 1 yard line, and Otto Schmidt went over for the score. Try for extra point failed.

A pass from Cline to Washington brought the second touchdown in the next period, and again the try for point was no good. Otto Schmidt got some good blocking on a 35-yard sprint for another touchdown, and Washington took a pass for the extra point to make it 19-0 at the half.

Schmidt scored again in the third period on a reverse, and Woodberry plunged for the point.

Simpson showed improvement on defense, and Woodberry did an exceptionally good job on backing up the line.

Substitutions: Simpson, McBride, Hieser, Petroff, Morrison, P. Schmidt, Sackman, Lazacona; Shelby, Appger, B. Hart.

100-Yard Kick Seen In Game

Ashland's Bob Dove Boots Length of Field.

The score was Ashland 21, Galion 6 last night at Galion. But the fans weren't talking today about Ashland's N.C.O. league victory, nor Galion's six points, nor even the battering play of Ashland's 230-pound Pug Puglisi who went 10 to 15 yards every time he carried the ball, and chalked up two touchdowns.

They were talking about that 100-yard punt which Bob Dove of Ashland booted in the first period from behind his own goal line to the Galion goal.

Coach Jimmy Lymper's Galion Orangemen gave Ashland a battle, and were first to score, with Salvador Medrano getting the touchdown in the first period.

Puglisi tallied in the second and third quarters, and Yeater scored for Ashland in the fourth stanza.

Marion continued its march toward another N.C.O. league championship with an easy 26-0 victory over Bucyrus. Tomorrow afternoon the Shelby Whippets meet Mt. Vernon in the last home game on the Shelby schedule.

Toledo Woodward, final foe on Mansfield's schedule, was edged 13-12 by Fostoria last night, and Akron West, who opened the Mansfield season, edged Akron South 13-12.

* * *

New London took it on the chin yesterday for its sixth straight defeat, dropping a 13-0 decision to Vermilion. Dale Seibert crossed the goal for New London on an 88-yard run in the first quarter, but the jaunt was nullified by a clipping penalty.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The heights of something: Every Thursday noon Columbia's football coaches hold open house for sports writers at the training table on Morningside Heights . . . at one end of a long table, Head Coach Lou Little is being badgered to pick a winner between Penn and Army, both of which drubbed his Lions . . . at the other end is Bob Kane, former track star who has come from Ithaca to speak for Cornell, and track is the subject . . . you don't learn much at these gatherings, but the ham and eggs are good.

COLON COLLECTED

The Coast Guard seems to be getting a guy with plenty of courage in Heavyweight Johnny Colan, who was sworn in today . . . instead of dodging the Friday the 13th jinx, Johnny is trying to set a record by fighting on three of those days . . . he faced Jimmy Webb at Madison Square Garden Friday, Feb. 13, again on March 13 and on Friday, Nov. 13, he's scheduled to take on Nate Bolden at the Chicago stadium.

SPORTPOURRI

Portland, Ore., will toss a civic dinner in honor of Johnny Pesky Monday night. . . . The Detroit Red Wings put out $1,000 for expense money to look over seven amateur hockey players this fall and had to send them home sight unseen when the kids couldn't get passports to leave Canada.

SERVICE DEPT.

When the ROTC boys at New York university receive their commissions they'll be ready to give the buck privates rifle shooting instruction. The NYU bunch recently staged a rifle meet with the ninth regiment of Camp Croft, S. C., by correspondence and won by 3,427 to 3,249.

BEER -- WINE BARREL HOUSE

Both Teams Attempt To Improve Records

IT WILL be the Tygers and the Trojans at Stadium field tonight, with both teams striving to improve a rather disappointing record for the 1942 football season.

It will also be homecoming night for Mansfield high school football fans, but it is doubtful if the frills attendant upon the introduction of the homecoming queen and her court will place any great strain upon the ticket takers. The game is still the thing.

Scrambled pre-game dope gives a slight edge to the Mansfield Tygers over Portsmouth's Trojans, but not enough of an edge to make the wagering, if any, better than an even-money proposition.

Any margin granted the Tygers comes on comparison of scores made by the two teams against Springfield, Mansfield winning over the Wildcats 6-0 while Portsmouth lost 7-26.

But the Portsmouth team that lost at Springfield was discouraged early in the going by 70 yards of penalties in the first quarter, while it is still admitted in Mansfield that the Tygers' victory over the Wildcats was the biggest kind of an upset.

The Springfield game two weeks ago was the first one this season in which fumbles were not costly to Mansfield's green team. The few Mansfield fumbles last week weren't particularly costly, though they broke up prospective Tyger offensives.

Portsmouth, with 16 lettermen on its squad, has a big edge in experience over the Tygers, but the Mansfield team gained experience in large chunks last week against Massillon, and can begin to consider itself in the veteran class.

The Trojans will have one advantage over Mansfield as the result of the Massillon game. Coach Paul Snyder had his Tygers "hopped up" to the limit against Massillon, and it's against human nature to expect them to reach that fighting height again this week.

If the Tygers can show the same amount of fight they did two weeks ago against Springfield they will be doing well enough.

On the other hand Portsmouth believes it has a jinx on the road this season after losing both at Springfield and Middletown, and it may take a lot of pep talk to get the Trojans out of that notion.

From here it looks like a good, hard, even football game, with the breaks likely to have a lot to do with the final outcome, particularly if the breaks come early in the game.

Mansfield will be at full strength for tonight's game and probably will start the same lineup that took the field against Springfield and Massillon. Probable lineups:

Mansfield	Pos.	Portsmouth
Burrage	LE	Monk
Snyder	LT	Hayes
Goettle	LG	Middleton
Snowden	C	Williams
Hetler	RG	Newman
Guy	RT	Burton
Lewis	RE	Coburn
Rachel	QB	MacDonald
Schmidt	LH	Flamer
Boyce	RH	Jones
Zivkoff	FB	Wales

PLAY FOR TITLE

Championship of the grade school touch football league will be decided tonight in a preliminary to the Mansfield-Portsmouth game at Stadium field when the undefeated Brinkerhoff and Bowman teams tangle for the title. Fans will discover how much more difficult it is for runners to evade touchers than tacklers.

JAPS ATTACKING GUADALCANAL IN REPEATED RAIDS

Try To Wear Down Americans Pinned In Area Around Henderson Field.

knocked out or their planes were unable to take to the skies because of damage, destruction or lack of gas.

Latest reports from Australia showed that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's airmen still were attempting to relieve the pressure on U. S. forces in the southern Solomons through repeated raids on Japanese shipping and positions. Flying fortresses bombed four more Japanese ships at Buin in a new raid Thursday on the Japanese base in the northern Solomons.

That U. S. airmen still dominated the skies in the southern Solomons as late as last Monday (Washington date) was shown by the navy communique which reported two attacks against Jap positions on Guadalcanal and nearby Rekata bay.

In a raid on Rekata, 115 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, U. S. aircraft attacked shore installations and destroyed four seaplanes.

Later the U. S. planes bombed enemy gun positions to the westward of Henderson airfield and destroyed an anti-aircraft battery and ammunition dump on Guadalcanal.

Barring unforeseen developments, it was apparent, however, that the Japanese troops were using only part of their full strength in attacks against American lines in preparation for a final assault from several directions.

Report 30,000 U. S. Troops On Island.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The British radio today quoted "unofficial estimates" that there are 20,000 to 30,000 American troops on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons. The broadcast, heard by CBS, attributed the estimate to no specific source.

The British radio also quoted a dispatch from R. W. Robson, editor of the Pacific Islands Monthly, which said the situation in the Solomons "is not one for optimism."

British Bombers Hit Jap Base In Burma.

NEW DELHI—(INS)—A joint communique issued by British and United States army headquarters in India today said that British Blenheim bombers attacked Japanese-held airdromes at Phakokku and Hwebo in Burma.

High explosives were smashed down upon the airdrome runways and buildings. Fires were started in the building areas.

The communique confirmed Monday's Japanese attack on Assam in India. It was announced that an American fighter pilot destroyed one of the attacking planes while British anti-aircraft fire dropped another.

PAYS TO LEARN ABOUT POLICE

Gives Up Idea Of Being Detective After Session In Court.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Elmer McCarty, 22, who said he always wanted to be a detective, today paid $30 for his first lesson and promptly retired from the profession.

Several days ago, McCarty reported to police that he had been robbed of $85 and upon being questioned admitted his report was false and that he only sought information of proper procedure in police investigations.

He got it and police showed him through the police station, and then took him through court where he was fined $30 for making a false report.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Patrolman Bernard Jennings' proficiency in delivering babies may get him a repeat call. "From now on you're my doctor," she said

BLACKOUT SET

Columbus Undergoes First Total Darkening Test Tonight.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Civilian defense officials scheduled the first total blackout for Columbus' metropolitan area for tonight and warned, "we are going to enforce the blackout regulations more strictly."

Sectional blackouts have been held in Ohio's capital city but sirens will signal about 9 p. m. an order for "lights out" in Columbus and suburban Bexley, Grandview, Marble Cliff, Upper Arlington and Hanford.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Six blue stars already are displayed in a window at the home of Mrs. Mary Hegedus Chechoslovakian born Cleveland woman—and soon there will be a seventh.

Her youngest son, Edward, 19, has signed up with the air cadets and expects to be in service soon.

IN NEW PHASE

Eden Says Britain Shifting From Defensive Operations.

GLASGOW, Scotland —(AP)— Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declared in a speech here today that Britain now is shifting away from the defensive.

Eden told the Scottish Unionist (Conservative party) conference that the war was at the start of a new phase. He said that Britain had air command over the northern coast of France and has proved that her planes can attack Italy by day and night.

ASKS MEETING ON MANPOWER

Murray Proposes President Call Leaders To Solve Critical Problem.

statements were made in testimony before the senate labor committee.

The CIO chieftain declared that there is grave danger that "we will bring to the manpower problem the same kind of irresponsibility and planlessness that has characterized—and is still characterizing—our treatment of the materials problem."

He said that the war effort is lacking in unified leadership, and continued:

"I propose, therefore, that this committee request the president of the United States to convoke within the next few days a conference of selected capable leaders, a conference to be attended by representatives of congress, the government, management, labor and agriculture.

"I suggest that the president be requested to convoke this conference committee of the nation to formulate plans for the establishment of the necessary machinery for the integration of our procurement, production and manpower agencies and resources under a unified directing and planning body."

Murray declared that too many cross currents and pressures are having a bad effect on the national morale.

"Our nation has come far since it first turned its attention to the problem of production for war," he said.

"We have reached the stage in our armed conflict and our productive operations where we can no longer afford to delay the complete integration of our entire economic organizations with every aspect of our war program—procurement, production, manpower—under unified and adequately planned direction and leadership.

Meanwhile, compulsory labor legislative proposals were assailed before the subcommittee by J. G. Luhrsen, secretary of the railway labor executive association.

In the name of railway labor, he demanded creation of a centralized war authority to plan not only distribution of manpower for war industry but men for the army and navy and distribution of war production.

"There are some people who think that compulsion is the cure-all for everything," he said.

"It is my firm opinion, after 30 years' of work with management, that both organized labor and management are opposed to compulsory national service legislation.

"It will not cure anything. It cannot possibly do the job when contracts and materials are not properly distributed."

As Labor Confers on Part In War Chest

Labor and management of Mansfield industrial plants conferred this week over plans in connection with raising 68 per cent of the total Community War Chest goal of $140,377 for Mansfield and Richland county. Both the Richland county council of the CIO and the executive committee of the AFL have endorsed the agreement between their national organizations and national war chest organizations. Industrial unions, however, have yet to take action on going "all-out" for the Mansfield-Richland county campaign. Shown here are the labor committees named to work with campaign officials in the drive. At top, from left to right, are: Glenn Heston, Richland county AFL recording secretary; W. Lee Slagle, county AFL business agent; Clarence D. Fike, president of the county federation; Fred B. Hout, major general of the Community War Chest campaign; Rudolph Schneider, co-chairman of the public service division. Members of the CIO group are shown below. They are, back row, left to right, William Bell, Delano lodge president; Desmond Walker, president of the rubber workers; Roy Waxler, chairman of the CIO committee for the Community War Chest; Steven Thomas; front row, J. Harry Gerhart, Delano lodge, co-major of the industrial division; John Gross, president of the Richland county council of CIO; Hout, and Michael Filipeli, recording secretary of the county CIO council.

HITS 'SHINERS

Bootlegging Arrests Decrease Under Sugar Rationing.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Sugar rationing is slashing the moonshiner's output of illegal liquor.

Sugar is basic for the moonshiner's product, and he could be smacked with a penalty for sugar bootlegging if he tried to build up his depleted sugar stock. During July, August and September this year agents seized 1,536 stills and arrested 2,833 persons, compared with 2,782 seizures and 3,581 arrests in the same quarter-year of 1941.

BRICKER SAYS SURPLUS WILL KEEP SCHOOLS GOING IN WAR

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The state treasury surplus will enable Ohio's public schools to carry on their present programs throughout the war, Gov. Bricker declared today.

"The $20,000,000 surplus which we have accumulated is a guarantee that there will be funds to keep the schools of Ohio operating on a high standard during the uncertain days ahead," he told the Northeastern Teachers association.

Asserting the schools "faced closing because of a deficit exceeding $18,000,000" when his administration took office four years ago, Bricker added:

"We promised that we would take care of that deficit, put the schools on a pay-as-you-go basis, and make the school foundation fund payments on time.

"The record shows we have accomplished this. Twelve million dollars of the inherited school deficit has been paid, and the remaining $6,000,000 needed to retire the debt reposes in the state treasury. Local school boards were paid in full, in cash and on time.

Bricker told the teachers their "splendid work" in connection with rationing, salvage and war bond sales had "earned the gratitude of every citizen."

be necessary. No report of adjustment has been made to the adjutant general's office."

Kenneth L. Beal, 37 Arch street, a helper in the city garbage disposal department, is the victim of the city administration's action. After the amount paid him by the state for attending annual encampment of his state guard regiment at Camp Hocking in July, Beal appealed to Service Director Fred B. Wolff and Locke.

Failing to get any satisfaction from these sources Beal wrote to Gov. John W. Bricker who advised him the matter was being referred to the office of the adjutant general for adjustment.

Records in the office of City Auditor Paul L. Kelley show Beal resigned from city employ Sept. 30, no reimbursement being noted in the financial records.

TOLL DROPS

Traffic Deaths Decrease 24 Per Cent In 9 Months of '42.

CHICAGO —(INS)— The nation's death toll from traffic accidents dropped 24 per cent in the first nine months of 1942 for a saving of 6,610 lives, the National Safety council announced today.

The nine-month fatality total this year was 21,290, against 27,900 for the same period last year. In September alone, there was a decrease of 1,490 in traffic fatalities, representing a 40 per cent drop from September of last year.

WPB OFFICIALS PUT ON CARPET

Committee Demands Explanation of Priorities Order.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A congressional subcommittee has called high-ranking officials of the war production board to appear Monday and explain a WPB order halting the issuance of priority certificates for private home building, it was disclosed today.

Representative Hebert (D., La.) a member of the subcommittee, charged that congress was promised specifically by WPB officials last summer before appropriating additional money for war housing that "private industry would be given an even break with public building."

He said the WPB order was "an unexplainable reversal of form."

BRITISH ARMY MAKES NEW GAIN ON EGYPT FRONT

U. S. Troops In Liberia Hint Pincer Move Against Foe In Africa.

to declare war on Britain, obviously hoping to gain the assistance of the once powerful French fleet.

On the Egyptian battlefront, Italian headquarters reported that Axis forces yesterday repulsed a fresh British attempt to land seaborne troops behind the lines and beat off repeated attacks by strong Allied armored units.

The Fascist war bulletin said the British twice attempted to set troops ashore in the vicinity of Matruh, 100 miles west of the actual fighting front, only to be driven off with heavy losses.

The Italian command admitted that British imperials attacking on the Alamein line, 80 miles west of Alexandria, succeeded in making "initial penetrations," but asserted that they were promptly halted.

Dispatches from Cairo said Lieut. Gen. B. L. Montgomery's British 8th army was slowly forging ahead through hidden Axis minefields, attacking by night and consolidating their new-won positions in daylight.

Reports from the front indicated that the British were getting into position to strike at Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's main force, but said it might be several days before a show-down test of armored strength develops.

An Associated Press correspondent in Cairo said that while U. S. army fliers were playing a major role in shielding the British desert fighters and attacking the enemy, American ground troops had not yet gone into action in the Middle East.

On the Soviet front, Red army headquarters announced that Russian tanks had won a critical battle of armored forces in Stalingrad's northside factory district had reported that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's relief offensive had smashed into German defenses in the Volga-Don corridor.

The Russians said 1,500 Nazis were killed and 16 tanks destroyed in the Stalingrad battle.

There was still no indication how near the city Marshal Timoshenko's relief forces had advanced in their drive against the 40-mile German "barricade" which guards the main Nazi siege armies on the north. Red army troops have been hacking into the Nazi flank for several weeks.

In the Caucasus, the Russians suffered a new setback on the Nalchik plateau—the second in 24 hours—as the Germans threw large numbers of tanks into an assault apparently aimed at reaching the Georgian military highway to Tiflis.

On the Black sea coast, in the western Caucasus, Red army troops were credited with dislodging the Germans from a fortified position and killing 1,200 Axis invaders northeast of Tuapse.

GHOST KILLER TO TAKE STAND

Expected To Tell Story of Long Hibernation In Attic.

DENVER —(INS)— Theodore E. Coneys, Denver's "ghost man" on trial for the murder of Philip Peters more than a year ago, was expected to take the district court witness stand late today to tell his story of his 10-months' "hibernation" in an attic cubbyhole.

District Attorney James T. Burke said the state's case against Coneys would be concluded today. He said Captain of Detectives James E. Childers would conclude his testimony concerning the confession Coneys dictated to him after his arrest.

The confession was introduced as evidence yesterday.

One of the world's deadliest air weapons, the ME 109 has been the spearhead of Germany's celebrated Luftwaffe. Fitted with a Daimler-Benz 12-cylinder 1150 horsepower engine, the Nazi fighter has a top speed of 354 miles an hour. Armament consisted of two .30 calibre machine guns and three .20 mm. shell-firing cannon. It is a single-seat pursuit fighter with a wing spread of 30 feet, and an overall length of 27 feet, 6 inches.

Credited with downing eight Allied planes, indicated by a series of trophy stripes on the tail, the Nazi ace was later brought down by anti-aircraft fire during the bombing of Coventry. Two Dutch, three British and three French planes were included in the bag.

Accompanying the plane here from Lima, where it is currently on exhibition, will be commentators to explain technical details and relate the story of the Messerschmitt's downfall for the benefit of visitors.

Use of the showroom for the exhibition has been donated by R. E. Moorhead.

REVEAL HITLER SOUGHT SECRET

Witnesses Hint Haupt Hired To Get Information on U. S. Bombsight.

friends are now on trial, was given the Iron Cross when he reached Germany. Again both attorneys declined to draw out the reason.

Though Herman Goering, No. 2 Nazi, has an ample supply, the German government does not toss around its highest medals with abandon, and especially to a 22-year-old youth whose previous military experience was limited to a short stretch in the reserve officer's training corps in Chicago.

This leaves the presumption that the German high command thought Haupt had supplied valuable information on the bombsight.

The probability that Haupt actually was sent for by the Nazi government was supported by two other witnesses yesterday. Barbara Kluczyk, landlady of the Chicago house where Herbert lived with his parents, said that as the youth was preparing to leave the country he made this unexplained statement:

"I wish I could stay. But my time is up soon."

Also, there was the testimony of William Leibl, now a private in the U. S. marine corps, who spoke with Haupt in Germany.

He said Haupt bragged to him of his exploits and his rank as a lieutenant in the German army (at 22) and told of his trip from America. Leibl continued:

"He said he left Chicago with two pals (one was Wolfgang Wergin, son of two defendants) and in swimming the Rio Grande into Mexico one boy was shot (this fugitive was unidentified). With the help of German consuls they flew from Mexico to South America, then boarded a Japanese boat to Yokohama, going later to Tokyo.

"Again aided by the German consul they took a blockade-breaking ship manned by a German crew and reached France, then moving on to Germany."

The special interest the German consulates in Mexico and Japan showed in two young Americans was regarded as significant.

All this, of course, came as sensational sidelights to the case in U. S. district court against Max and Erna Haupt, Walter and Lucille Froehling, and Otto and Kate Wergin.

The government, having pictured the enormity of the sabotage planned by Haupt and the other seven, sought to link the defendants directly to the agent's plans.

LOANS FOR EMPLOYED WOMEN

We're addressing any employed woman in this community who has a problem which cash can solve.

Borrowing money is never wise if it means making difficulties worse . . . but there are certain circumstances in which a well-planned loan is the best way to get out of debt many times. Obligations which seem discouraging when added up in a lump can be paid off comfortably when broken down into monthly payments. And when ready cash isn't available for needed medical or dental work, clothing, for training which will increase one's earning power—then a loan is also common-sense.

Here at Personal Finance Company we specialize in serving women. If you need cash—$10 to $250 or more—we'll see that you get it without embarrassment or delay, without involving your friends or employer and without the need for putting up special security. We make loans on just your own signature—because we have found that business women in this community honor their obligations.

There is no difficulty in handling monthly payments on a loan here. For example

$7.56 a Month Repays a $75 Loan in 12 Months

If you need cash, we'll be glad to serve you. Special quick service during lunch hour. Come in or phone then if that's best for you. It will be a pleasure to serve you.

CHAPTER III

"Miss Clarkson, you're going the wrong way. Mr. Nolan's room is here."

Livia retraced her steps, without looking at the nurse.

"Oh, I thought he might be too ill to see me," she mumbled.

"So did I," said the nurse, "until I told him your name."

So he had remembered her! She softly opened the door and tiptoed into the room. He was sitting up on the narrow, white bed, his arm hidden in bandages.

"I'm sorry I ran away last night," Livia said, "I—I had to get home—and—er."

"Sit down." His head motioned her to the white chair by the bed. She sat down. "Will you do me a great favor?" he asked.

"Oh, yes; anything I can."

"Will you take off your hat?" She smiled and obeyed. "Ah, that's better." His eyes lingered on her gold-red hair with satisfaction. "Don't ever wear a hat."

"I didn't come here to talk about me. You—they said in the paper you were seriously injured." He grinned deprecatingly. "It's nothing."

Then there was silence between them.

She smiled at him. "Were you surprised when they said I was here?"

He nodded.

"I thought I'd lost you. I thought you'd disappeared into the night." He rolled a cigaret expertly with his free hand and smoked awhile in silence.

"I wasn't sure if you had any friends—and the paper said—" He cut her short.

"Don't apologize for coming here. It was swell of you."

"But what will you do about your job?"

"I'm insured," he said briefly. Then, "why are you in Los Angeles? The movies?"

"I was born here, and I was going to be a schoolmistress. But I'm not going to be. And I live with my mother and sister." She told him about winning the "charm Girl" competition. "And goodness," she looked at her watch, "I've got to go home and tell them."

"I know some of the fellows in that studio—d'ye want me to talk to them?" he asked.

"No, no, please don't," said Livia hastily. "Everything has been taken care of."

"Can you act."

"I was the leading lady in our high school plays," she said solemnly. And detected a grin on his mouth. "Well, anyway, I'm as good as some of those stars they pay thousands of dollars to," she said defiantly. "No, the only thing that's worrying me is how to tell my family." She turned to him tragically, "Can you see me as a school teacher?"

"No," he agreed smilingly.

Livia had a bright idea.

"You know all about the movies. Would you talk to my mother? I mean on the telephone, and say that it's quite respectable and all that—if you feel well enough?"

"What's your telephone number?" She told him.

"When shall I call?"

"About nine o'clock tonight." She looked at her watch, "I must go." She paused at the door. "You really don't mind doing this for me?"

"I'll be talking to you, too, won't I?"

"Yes, of course. Well, thanks a lot." She flashed her brightest smile, and was gone.

Bruce turned off the light over the hospital bed and closed his eyes. Her visit had tired him. But he was happy.

"That's my girl," he told the nurse who had announced Livia.

"Yes? But now you must rest."

Promptly at nine o'clock he telephoned Livia.

"No, you can't talk to mother tonight," she whispered into the receiver, "She's not well. One of her headaches—no, nothing serious."

"Then you haven't told her?"

"Who is that, Livia?" Mrs. Clarkson called from the living room sofa.

"Oh—er—a friend of mine—a man I met the other night at a party."

"Does he want me?"

"No, mother, don't get up. It's nothing."

"I'll call you later," she told Bruce. "Good-bye." She put the receiver down on the hook quickly.

Livia was accustomed to her mother's blinding headaches. Her eyes were weak, and the constant pouring over books and correction of exercises resulted in bad headaches. They soon passed, but this was distinctly not the time for Livia to tell her that she had won the "Charm Girl" competition.

She thought of telling Vera. But Vera was going out tonight. She was going out with George Maxwell, who was more or less accepted as Vera's fiance. George worked a weekly race sheet called "The Winner." They were going to a movie.

"But I'll stay if you think mother needs me," Vera said to Livia.

"No, I can look after her—go with George and have a good time."

Livia slept soundly. But she awakened at six in the morning on a high note of excitement. This was the day on which her whole future was to be decided. She was careful not to wake her mother or Vera when she went downstairs. A copy of the "Gazette" was outside the kitchen door.

Her pictures, four of them, were on the front page. And a new version of her life story. She read that her father had been one of the civic founders of Los Angeles. What she actually told the reporter was that he had been a business man in Los Angeles. There was even a picture of their old home on the hill.

"Mother ought to like that," Livia told herself without conviction. Her mother would hate Livia's, or rather the reporters insistence on their "abject poverty today."

Her appointment at the studio was for nine o'clock.

"I must tell mother before I go," she said to herself. But should she awaken her mother? "She's not well," she thought, and then said aloud, "Livia Clarkson, you're a coward."

Her mother would weep and beg her not to go to the studio. And they would have another quarrel. Oh, why was her mother so prejudiced? "After all, it's only a test, I may not get a contract." But she was sure she would. "When I come back, waving a contract for a thousand a week, then mother will be glad. Oh, then she can stop working, no more headaches. I'll buy back the old house to live in—not for a school." Yes, she was doing it for her mother and Vera as much as for herself.

It was seven o'clock now. Soon Vera and her mother would awaken. Something had to be decided—and quickly. The solution came suddenly.

"I'll leave a note attached to the paper, and go before they get up."

She left the note and newspaper on the kitchen table, and immediately felt better. Swiftly she brushed her hair, took infinite pains with her make-up, gulped down some coffee. And trembling with excitement, Livia left for the studio.

Livia took a taxi. It was extravagant, but, she said to herself, when she was a movie star, she would have her own car and chauffeur.

The big iron gates at the studio were closed, but there was a smaller entrance on the side. Here in a glassed-in cupboard sat a gray-haired man in uniform.

"Good morning," Livia smiled winningly at him. He waited politely. So, they hadn't told him? And where was the executive who had promised to meet her at the gate? For a moment her confidence diminished, but it came back at once when, after telling the gateman, "I am Livia Clarkson," his face relaxed, and he said:

"Oh, yes — just been reading about you." A copy of the "Gazette" was under his coffee cup. "Mr. Nevins—" he was the executive Livia had expected at the gate—"Mr. Nevins telephoned me he'll be a bit late. But you're to go to the make-up department. He'll meet you there."

Livia was walking in the direction he had pointed when he called her back.

"Oh, Miss Clarkson—here's a telegram for you."

Who could it be? She tore it open. "Good luck," she read. It was signed "Bruce."

"It's from Bruce Nolan," she told the gateman. "D'ye know him?"

"Sure do—one of the best stunt men in the business. Too bad about his accident."

"It wasn't serious — just his arm." Livia told him happily. When she was a star, she would do a lot for Bruce. He was too nice to be a stunt man, risking his life for other people.

She walked with dancing feet to the long, low wooden building. Opening the door of the first booth, she sprang back with a startled, "Oh." A man in white coat was leaning over a famous star painting her lips with a long, thin brush.

"I'm so sorry," said Livia—"I'm—I'm—" The star smiled at her, and pointed to the "Gazette" on her dressing table.

"Miss Clarkson?"

"Yes," breathed Livia. It was strange to be talking to a real star. "I—er—I have to be made-up for my test," she told the star shyly.

"You can have Smithy. He won't be a minute more." The man in the white coat glared at Livia.

"I have something else to do."

"But you'll do me a favor and take care of Miss Clarkson?" the star said.

"I don't want to be any trouble," said Livia.

"It's no trouble, is it Smithy?"

"Not if you say so," he replied grudgingly. The star left with a parting "Good luck," and Livia sat down carefully in her chair.

"Can you make me as beautiful as she is?" Livia asked Smithy.

He shrugged his shoulders.

"That, my dear lady, is not possible. I will do the best I can." Livia dwindled before his cold, impersonal glare. But she couldn't be that bad. After all, she had won the "Charm Girl" contest.

"My cheek bones are rather high," she said timidly as he continued to stare at her as though she were something in a museum. "Maybe you could do something to tone them down?"

"My dear young lady, I am not a magician. I am an artist. Your cheek bones are high. That is your misfortune." He suddenly swung the chair backward.

"I mustn't irritate him any more," Livia thought as he slapped a brownish grease paint on her face. But she made a last plea. "My eyes—could you—" she thought he was going to burst as he glared down on her.

"Look, Miss Clarkson, I have made up the biggest stars in the business. And not once have I been told how I should do my work. You stick to your job. I'll stick to mine."

Livia choked back a desire to laugh. His red face and little black eyes were so funny.

"I'm sorry," she told him, "I didn't mean—"

"You didn't mean, you didn't mean," he mumbled.

Mr. Nevins appeared at the door. He was a welcome interruption for Livia.

"And how's the 'Charm Girl?'" he asked her.

"Fine," she lied. Smithy put down the brush with which he was curving a line on Livia's lips.

"How can I work with all this conversation going on?" he asked the world reproachfully. Nevins winked at Livia.

"I'll be outside when you're through."

She was glad when it was over.

"Am I all right?" she asked Nevins.

"Oh, sure. Hurry; we're late."

They walked swiftly to the sound stage. It seemed empty and stuffy. Their footsteps were loud on the wide, dark floor. They picked their way carefully over a network of cables to the far side of the stage.

Carpenters were setting up the scene; a small, three-sided room with bright arc lamps converging on the only piece of furniture in it—a sofa. Livia was introduced to the man who was to share the test with her. His hand was damp.

"Howd'ye do," he said in a high, British voice. He tugged nervously at his collar and added, "Beastly bore all this."

They sat on the sofa while the cameraman and his assistant arranged the lights. It was all done casually. And no-one there seemed to care or realize that this was the most important day in Livia's eighteen years. Was all picture-making as casual as this? Maybe it was just the salary that was exciting. Oh, yes, the salary. And her drooping spirits revived.

They were on the set for an hour before the director appeared. He smiled at Livia and shook her hand, said hello to the Britisher, and rehearsed them for their scenes. It was easier than Livia had anticipated. The Britisher was a singer. All she had to do was say, "Do you really?" in the middle of his song. Then they had to kiss. Then Livia had to look into the camera and say, "I love you, Richard."

Livia tried to forget everyone on the set as she listened to the song in which the Britisher swore eternal love to her. But despite her concentration, she was aware of every little movement on the set.

She was glad when the director stopped them and explained to the singer that he must look at Livia and not at the camera. When the time came for her to say, "Do you really?" she thought of Bruce, and still thinking of him, kissed the singer at the end of the song. But she could hardly forbear an expression of disgust. The Britisher was a lover of the onion.

It was over. Mr. Nevins told her she was fine. So did the director.

Boost Blades As Bums' Boss

Line of Candidates Forming at Right.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Branch Rickey, new president and general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, probably will name Ray Blades as 1943 manager, his first big move in a plan of strategy designed to rebuild his new charges into a streamlined 1943 contender.

It might be just coincidental, but Blades, close friend and pupil of Rickey's quit his post as coach with the Cincinnati Reds just as the former Cardinals' boss was chosen to succeed Larry MacPhail, former Dodgers' executive, now a lieutenant colonel in the army. Rickey takes over at Brooklyn officially Nov. 1 under a five-year contract at a reported salary of $50,000 and a bonus agreement, raising the total to $80,000.

Rickey said that the possible return of Leo Durocher, current pilot, to his regular position had not been forgotten.

"However, I am under the impression," Rickey said, "that Durocher plans to enter some branch of the services shortly but I will not know definitely until I return to St. Louis."

The list of candidates for manager of the Dodgers also includes Fred Fitzsimmons, Chuck Dressen, Burt Shotton, Billy Herman and Bill Meyer.

Blades' record as manager of the Cardinals—they finished second in 1939 and third the following year—is not imposing but he is a capable manager. An injury cut short his major league playing career and after a few seasons of minor league play he retired. In 1933, he guided Columbus to its first pennant in 26 years. He piloted Rochester in 1936-37-38 and after his brief tenure with the Cards, managed New Orleans in 1941.

Not In Hurry to Replace Rickey

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)— Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today he was "in no hurry" to select a successor to Branch Rickey, who resigned as general manager to become president of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"I have no one in mind to succeed Rickey," Breadon said. "That post probably will be divided among several members of our organization. Anyway, you can rest assured that I will not appoint an outsider."

Among those prominently mentioned for the position were William Walsingham, jr., Breadon's nephew, who is a Cardinal vice president; Eddie Dyer, manager of the Columbus, O., farm club, and Joe Mathes, chief scout.

Ohio to Open Up Private Fisheries

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's anglers may get a chance to fish in their own back yards—almost.

The state conservation and natural resources division plans to aid tire and gasoline-rationed disciples of Izaak Walton by opening hundreds of privately-owned lakes and ponds throughout the state.

The division will negotiate with 700 owners in an effort to increase to 1,200 the number of such fishing places open to anglers, said Conservation Commissioner Don Waters.

* * *

Under a new type agreement to be used after Nov. 15 landowners would open lakes for three years to free, controlled public fishing and provide a lane for fishermen to enter and leave.

Lake owners could charge for boat, tackle and bait.

10 AWARDS . . (each) $1 CASH

Here's All You Do To WIN!

On the front page of the News-Journal each day, there appears a list of merchants. They are divided into three groups which are: Large Ads, Medium Ads, and Small Ads. Those are the ads to be checked in that day's News-Journal. All you do is select one ad from each group. Make your selections on the basis of "which ads will do the merchants the most good?"

Your selections are then written on the Community Survey Answer Form shown at the right. That's all you do to be eligible for the awards. Everyone can enter. The Community Survey is being conducted for 13 weeks. You may send in an entry every week if you like. But, don't wait! Enter this interesting survey now. You may find it very profitable to you.

COMMUNITY SURVEY ANSWER FORM

(Copyright, 1941, Wid Gunning)

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

EACH DAY OF THE WEEK ..... TO .....

	LARGE ADS	MEDIUM ADS	SMALL ADS
Sun.
Mon.
Tues.
Wed.
Thurs.
Fri.
Sat.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

HAT USED TO SELL WAR BONDS

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(INS)—A group of Moslah Temple Shrine patrol members paid $2,800 the other night for a straw hat. It got them reservations to see the show, "Wake Island."

At a "new member" party, the straw hat of one of the members of the entertainment committee was auctioned off to the highest bidder—and all bids went into war bonds. Leon Bandy got the hat with $600 worth of bonds.

MAJORITY OF STOCKS TAKE UPWARD ROAD

However Price Changes Hold To Narrow Trail; Retail Spending Increases.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK —Narrow shifts predominated in today's early stock market dealings although the majority were on the upside.

Improved were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Paramount, Anaconda, Texas Co., Western Union and Montgomery Ward. Lower prices were posted for Westinghouse, Loew's and U. S. Rubber.

Those watching business trends for market clues derived some comfort from the Dun & Bradstreet survesy disclosing this week's retail spending throughout the nation recorded one of the sharpest increases for many months, a dollar volume upturn over 1941 of 14 to 18 per cent.

Confirmation of the purchasing bulge was given by the federal reserve board which estimated department store distribution for the country as a whole during the week ended Oct. 24 topped the like period a year ago by 18 per cent.

Mansfield Schools Use Money For Variety of Purposes, Survey Discloses.

officials haven't decided the best place to put their salvage money. "It's a question of spending it wisely," Roy Spetka, principal reported. Probably some school equipment will be bought, he added.

From the $180.88 salvage receipts at Carpenter school, a ditto machine has been purchased, pianos tuned and reconditioned and today the pupils will all receive a Halloween treat in their home rooms, Dean Rex announced. "That takes care of all the money except a small amount from the keys which we haven't turned in as yet," Rex said.

"At the teachers' meeting Wednesday, it was decided that the patriotic thing to do with our $210 would be to invest most of it in war bonds and give about $50 to patriotic efforts," C. C. Secrist, Brinkerhoff principal, said. Some equipment for putting on an air raid drill may have to be bought also, he stated.

So far $369.59 has been gotten from the salvage material at Hedges school with approximately $25 more coming in according to Glen L. Robinson, principal. With the fund, three radios have been purchased for the purpose of using the educational programs from WOSU Columbus in the first grade class rooms. "This is an experiment to see the importance and value of supervised radio education for pupils," Robinson said. A new ditto machine was also obtained.

Newman school is also going to use the educational programs from Columbus besides those from Youngstown for the fifth and sixth grades, Jesse Beer, principal reported. The school's only radio was repaired and one new combination radio-recording set has been gotten from their $120.95 receipts. Two more radios are needed, Beer said. About three tons of scrap remain to be sold and all remaining money will be put in war bonds, he added.

Prospect school hasn't decided what to do with its $93.69 as yet but will wait for "immediate needs and spend it to the best advantage," C. W. Taylor, principal announced. Some reading books will be paid for out of this amount, he added.

Before West Fifth street school began its scrap drive, pupils decided that they wanted to use the money received for supplementary readers for each room so everyone would have a chance to use them, W. W. Blauser, principal said. "That was our goal and that is what our $100.25 will be used for," he announced.

If pupils approve, the $164.87 received from salvage collection at Johnny Appleseed Junior high school will be invested in war bonds, G. W. Harmony, principal said. Approximately $20 will come in yet from scrap not collected. At Woodland school the $105.90 will be used for war bonds and to pay part of the debt on encyclopedias purchased last year, C. A. Divelbiss said. A few more dollars will also be turned in from recently sold scrap, he said.

Something for the entire school will be bought for John Simpson Junior high pupils with the money from their scrap campaign, H. J. Dotson, principal said. "We haven't definitely made up our minds what the $142.73 will go for but the entire school will benefit," he added.
